People who call our community their own.

What makes Barb McEvoy smile? "Good friends and flowers," said the Noblesville resident, a retired insurance underwriter, who took up pressed-flower art in retirement. She was found demonstrating the art of creating detailed, exquisite pieces from her dried, pressed flowers at the Hamilton County Artists' Association Birdie Gallery in Noblesville, where she is a juried member. "I think about what I want in the picture, then I decide what plant material I'm going to use to make it a picture, to make it the art." She said, "I paint with petals." Barb has her artwork in the gallery and its gift shop. She was also juried in for her pressed flower jewelry, modeling her necklace (above). Today's feature is a look back at one of The Times' previous Faces of Hamilton County. Her pressed flower art earned first place in its category in Nature's Inspirations Art Exhibit in 2019 at Cool Creek Nature Center. She has always loved sewing and home decorating and growing flowers. She earned a certificate in fresh floral design at IU-PUI, which helps her create arrangements in her artwork. She has a husband, Chris, one daughter, Anne, and a granddaughter, Zoe, who also loves art. Born in Greensburg, she grew up in Indianapolis, moving there when she was 2. She most recently lived in Carmel. Other passions? She likes to cook and bake. The next 2022 HCAA First Friday event is 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Feb. 4 at the Birdie Gallery, 195 S. Fifth St., in downtown Noblesville. The event is free and open to the community. The HCC also has an ongoing exhibit featuring juried artist members at NobleMade Gift Shop inside the Noblesville Visitor Center in downtown Noblesville. Also, HCAA has a callout to fine artists with the announcement of its inaugural Midwest Juried Art Exhibit in March, with entry deadline Feb. 1, for an entry fee of $15 for members and $30 for nonmembers, with the award ceremony on March 4. Accepted mediums include oil, acrylic, watercolor, pastel, charcoal, pencil, ink and mixed media. The Best of Show will be awarded $1,000 with merit awards for best in categories. Same As U, local nonprofit, looks to purchase Faith Community Church, expand opportunities

The pandemic has been difficult. But not everything from the pandemic has been bad. In 2019, shortly before any of us were talking about COVID, a new beginning was occurring.

Same As U, a Hamilton County based nonprofit that serves young adults with developmental disabilities, opened its doors just 9 weeks before the shutdown. In just two years, despite a global pandemic, Same As U has grown over 500% and now serves 48 young adults with disabilities and their families from Hamilton and surrounding counties.

Set in a college-like setting, Same As U meets the needs of these young adults - and their families - who are struggling with the lack of opportunity and lack of purpose that stems from too much time at home, isolated from community and personal growth, after high school. Executive Director Jennifer Sell states that, "We believe these young adults can continue to learn and will embrace opportunities to keep their minds and bodies active. They want to go to college like their peers. They want to know they belong to a community and that their community continues to believe in them and invests in their potential."

Demand for this program is not slowing down. House in White River

Christian Church, Same As U will reach capacity in a few short months.

Meanwhile, just a couple of miles across 191st Street, the members and leadership of Faith Community Church had been engaged in substantiality conversations - particularly in regard to their building.

FCC began in 1998 and had built and moved into their building on Promise Road in 2001. However, since that time, their ministry has evolved and the pandemic has revealed new opportunities for ministry. Faith Community is evolving from an attractional model of inviting and drawing people into their building, programs and services to a model that encourages and empowers its members and friends to serve and be out in and among the community. Thus, the use of their building as a body of believers was seldom called for outside of Sunday mornings.

The pandemic accelerated the decline of traditional participation and engagement among church members nationally. For FCC that meant it was time to sell their building. Patrick Propst, pastor at FCC, remarked that, "We realized we didn't need a building and it was becoming more and more difficult to afford the expenses that come with owning and maintaining a property. We hoped to sell our building to a nonprofit or community of faith. A group that could come in and utilize the space and serve our community in a unique way while allowing us to continue to minister. We wanted to utilize the generosity of our faith family to go towards serving in practical ways among our neighbors."

Same As U board member, Reba Cooper, heard about the potential sale of FCC's building and reached out to the church. This led to a series of meetings between FCC and SAU. Through this process, it was decided this could be a win for both sides. Sell states, "Having our own campus will allow us to expand the program and best serve the students of Same As U. This building is uniquely laid out to be conducive to learning, handicap accessible and provides immediate room for growth. We need more space to be able to accommodate the need."

Sell and her Board of Directors have begun a capital-raising campaign to purchase the building. They have just over 60% of their $1.5 million goal but are asking for the community to join them in their cause. Raising as much of their goal as possible will allow them to not only welcome new students at the new campus later this year but will also allow them to invest in making necessary modifications to the building to accommodate their programming needs.

As for Faith Community, Same As U will open the building up to FCC to continue meeting on Sunday mornings for their communal worship. "This will allow us to stay in a familiar place, at least for a while. In addition, we hope to see how we can partner with SAU to serve their students and families in ways that help and benefit them," hoped Pastor Propst.

"I'm excited for the future of both of these community-oriented groups," said Noblesville Mayor Chris Jensen. "They have worked hard to collaborate, and this arrangement will benefit both of their organizations and the services they provide to our community."

Same As U has already developed extensive plans for their students and acquiring this forever home would lay the groundwork for making those plans a reality. "Allowing FCC to use the building on Sundays not only made sense but will allow us to partner with Faith Community in new ways to serve our families," commented Sell.

Degree in marketing!

I'm in a lot of trouble. I tried to sneak in the back door without my wife seeing me, but I got caught with you-know-what on my breath: salami.

Yes, I had been out courting. At Kroger. Ever since Covid started, my wife prefers that we not go into stores, but instead pick up food curbside. I'm sorry, but you can't indulge yourself in guilty delights on a computer screen, so...I put on my N95 and silently slipped under the door. Sounds mysterious, doesn't it?

The other day I returned home with a bagful of goodies. I usually shop while Mary Ellen is walking in the woods behind our house so when I get home I can take my stash and stuff it away without her seeing what I bought. I've devised many clever places to hide questionable food choices. I once got caught hiding a Johnsonville sausage link in an empty lamp socket. "What is that?" she asked.

"It's a 40 brat bulb," I told her.

Back to my attempted covert entry into the house. Mary Ellen carefully eyed each item as I unloaded my bag onto the counter...

MUFFINS: "Are they gluten free? How much added sugar?"

EGGS: "Did you check the expiration date? Did you check to see if any of them were cracked? These are not from cage-free farms. And they're cheaper at Costco. Are they organic? Brown eggs don't go with the new fridge."

DICK WOLFSIE

FRENCH BREAD: "It's just going to go bad. You never finish it. It gets hard as a rock overnight because you don't seal the package. After three days, the birds won't even eat it."

PISTACHIO NUTS: "Why did you buy those? You know we're just going to eat them. Almonds are better for us."

MILK: "A quart? It's so much cheaper by the gallon. And how many grown men still drink chocolate milk?"

CHEESE DIP: "That reminds me, did you remember to pick up your Lipitor?"

My wife doesn't have food cravings like I do. If Mary Ellen turned to me one night and said, "I have this hankering for a pastrami sandwich and a half sour pickle," well, I can tell you right now, I'd want to check her photo ID before we spent the rest of the night together.

Last week I was yearning for a jumbo shrimp cocktail. By the time I got to the store, I had lost that desire, and opted instead for a bag of Spicy Nacho Doritos. That poor nutritional choice required finding the perfect hiding place at home to avoid my wife's disapproving eye. I can never use the space under the back porch. The raccoons know exactly what I'm up to.

Another drawback to this trickery is that I forget where I've hidden things. I've found a half-eaten burrito in the laundry cabinet, a Twinkie in an old eyeglasses case and Peppermint Patties in a tennis ball can.

Truth is, I get a kick out of the game of Hide and Eat. I recently stashed a chocolate chip cookie under my pillow. That night just after we turned off our bedroom TV, Mary Ellen made me promise to think about laying off bad food. I told her I'd sleep on it.

Indiana Builders Association responds to year-end building permit numbers: Indiana up 17%

The U.S. Census Bureau recently released statewide totals for building permits issued in December and shows 1,678 single-family permits were pulled, the highest December total for permits since 2005. The 1,678 permits pulled in December of 2021 are up 6% from the 1,548 permits pulled in December of 2020. This number is up 4% from November of 2021, when 1,610 permits were pulled. The single-family permit numbers (21,830) for 2021 are up 17% compared to permits pulled in 2020.

"We ended 2021 on a strong note and expect to continue to see upward trends in the first half of 2022 due to the backlog of sales which have yet to start. Delays caused by supply chain disruptions, lumber tariffs, labor shortages, and building material product price increases continue to impact prices. Imminent interest rate hikes, in an effort to curb inflationary pressures, are expected to negatively impact housing starts in the coming months as mortgage rates increase, says Indiana Builders Association President, Paul Schwinghammer.

About the Indiana Builders Association

Established in 1952, IBA has 21 local affiliates across Indiana and is associated with the National Association of Home Builders in Washington, D.C. Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra celebrates unheard voices in "Welcome Back to the United States of America" Feb. 4th and 5th

In honor of Black History Month, the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra (ISO) pays homage to African-American composers with an energetic and insightful program for "Welcome Back to the United States of America" Feb. 4-5, 2022.

Canadian-American conductor Peter Oundjian explores the music of North America with the ISO, starting with William Grant Still's Poem for Orchestra, which Still's wife says was "inspired by the concept of a world being reborn spiritually after a period of darkness and desolation." Florence Price—the first Black woman to have her music performed by a major U.S. orchestra—honors her African-American heritage with a movement of her String Quartet, arranged for orchestra by Oundjian. Barber's unbroken Symphony No. 1 releases its titanic strength and energy, and the ISO commissions a new work by young African-American composer Joel Thompson, recently celebrated in the New York Times for his moving work "Seven Last Words of the Unarmed." Through the ISO's Unheard Voices initiative, generously supported by the Eli Lilly and Company Foundation, the 2021-22 season celebrates contemporary and historical composers whose works are often underrepresented in orchestras today.

Performances begin at 8 p.m. Fri., Feb. 4 and 5:30 p.m. Sat., Feb. 5. Per the ISO health and safety guidelines, proof of vaccination and face masks are mandatory. For more information regarding the policies of the Hilbert Circle Theatre, please visit the ISO website.

Indiana produces 7th most CO2 emissions per capita in the U.S.

As the effects of climate change become more severe, policymakers worldwide are increasingly focused on how to limit greenhouse gas emissions, slow the pace of climate change, and mitigate climate risks.

World leaders met in Glasgow last November for the latest United Nations climate conference, with the aim of setting new, more aggressive targets to reduce emissions and combat warming. The conference produced a number of pledges to accomplish this goal, including agreements to phase down the use of fossil fuels for energy.

In the U.S., limiting carbon emissions has been a major goal in the first year of President Joe Biden's administration. A $1 trillion infrastructure bill passed by Congress and signed into law in November included major new investments in the electric grid and clean energy, electric vehicle charging stations, and enhanced rail and public transportation systems to reduce emissions. The Biden Administration has also used other means to establish emissions reductions as a priority, including a broad pledge to cut the nation's emissions by 2030 and an executive order outlining specific steps the federal government will take to reduce its carbon footprint.

Strong U.S. action to reduce carbon emissions is critical to reducing emissions worldwide. As the world's largest economy, the U.S. is one of the top producers of carbon emissions. The U.S. generates 5.1 billion tons of CO2 in total each year, behind only China at 11.1 billion. The U.S. also ranks second in carbon emissions on a per capita basis, with emissions of 15.6 tons of CO2, trailing Canada's 17.8 tons of CO2 per capita.

While the U.S. remains among the top emitters worldwide, CO2 emissions have been trending downward over time. Total CO2 emissions reached a peak of around 6 billion tons in 2007, but annual emissions have declined by almost 1 billion tons per year since. Per capita emissions have shown a similar decline over the same period, even despite continued U.S. population and GDP growth over that period.

States in the U.S. contribute different amounts to these totals depending on factors like population, economic makeup, and government policy.

Larger states like Texas and California tend to have the highest emissions on an absolute basis, but in some states this is mitigated at the per capita level by greater reliance on clean energy or policies like emissions targets. In contrast, many of the top states for carbon emissions on a per capita basis have both low populations and economies that rely heavily on fossil fuels, including Wyoming, North Dakota, and West Virginia.

The data used in this analysis is from the U.S. Energy Information Administration and the U.S. Census Bureau. To determine the states with the largest carbon footprint, researchers at Commodity.com calculated per capita annual CO2 emissions. In the event of a tie, the state with the higher total annual CO2 emissions was ranked higher.

The analysis found that at an annual 28.2 tons per person, Indiana produces the 7th most carbon emissions per capita in the U.S. each year.

Here is a summary of the data for Indiana:

- Per capita annual CO2 emissions (tons): 28.2
- Total annual CO2 emissions (tons): 188,800,000
- Sector that emits the most CO2: Electric Power
- Fuel that emits the most CO2: Coal

For reference, here are the statistics for the entire United States:

- Per capita annual CO2 emissions (tons): 15.6
- Total annual CO2 emissions (tons): 5,144,360,777
- Sector that emits the most CO2: Transportation
- Fuel that emits the most CO2: Petroleum said, "It was a joy to work with Mr. Basile on this donation. He believes strongly in our mission and wanted to help us take our theater to the next level. In the coming several months you will see new improvements to our home to enhance your experience while at our playhouse." Brandi Davis, President of Main Street Productions, Inc., stated, "The donation from Frank and Katrina Basile will help guarantee that we will continue to be able to produce the high quality entertainment that Westfield has come to expect from MSP." The name will be used immediately, starting with our electronic and printed publications; signage on the building will be coming soon!

 About Main Street Productions, Inc.
 Main Street Productions, Inc. has a 30-year history of providing quality community theatre to the city of Westfield. Established in 1991 as the Westfield Washington Township Theatrical Society, later in 1995 the group changed the name to Main Street

Productions, Inc., and that is the name we still have today. Over the first few years, productions were held all over Westfield. MSP performed in several churches and restaurants, schools, the courthouse, and even in the theatre that was once on North Union Street in Westfield. MSP has been heavily involved in the community of Westfield by participating in Voices From the Past, Westfield in Lights, Westfield Rocks the 4th, the Westfield Arts Alliance, and Chamber of Commerce functions. In 1996, MSP purchased an old church in Eagletown, and we spent the next four years converting it to the Westfield Playhouse, putting on productions regularly there until 2020. In 2020, with great excitement, we have moved to our brand new 1700-seat, handicap-accessible playhouse on North Union Street and welcome our patrons our productions to this jewel in downtown Westfield.
 About Frank and Katrina Basile.
 Frank Basile is a professional speaker, author, former columnist, community volunteer, philanthropist, retired property management executive and world traveler. His wife Katrina is a former banking executive and a retired Realtor. As philanthropists, they have contributed to numerous not-for-profit organizations in the arts and culture, education, religious and health care fields. He received the Outstanding Philanthropist Award from the Association of Fundraising Professionals and the Spirit of Philanthropy Award from Indiana University. The Basiles' primary focus has been the arts, especially the theater. Frank Basile said, "Our first love is the theater, especially assisting smaller theaters in providing another quality arts option for their local residents. The successful 30-year-old Main Street Productions, with its beautiful new building in the city of Westfield, provided the perfect opportunity to use our resources for a cause we believe in, and we are very grateful for that opportunity."

munity for growth and economic development by helping students reach their goals locally.
 "The ongoing partnership between the Noblesville Rotary Club and Ivy Tech Hamilton County is only solidified by the formal establishment of the fund," said Carrie Dixon, President of the Noblesville Rotary Club. "We hope that our event Sponsors, Partners and Vendors will take pride in knowing they are contributing to the betterment and advancement of our community through support of this scholarship fund. Students who pursue degrees at Ivy Tech do not have as much access to scholarships as those who attend traditional four year colleges. Our goal is to put the same importance and support into these valuable programs which contribute greatly to the growing need in our communities of graduates with these skill sets", said Carrie.
 To apply, students can contact their High School Guidance Counselor or the Admissions Department at Ivy Tech Hamilton County Campus.

 Applications can be accepted now through July 1st, 2022. There will be a scholarship breakfast to recognize winners and their families. The date of the scholarship breakfast is still TBD.
 About The Noblesville Rotary Club
 The Noblesville Rotary Club formed in 1955 to contribute to the Noblesville and Cicero communities. The club has directly impacted the local community over the years - most recently starting a scholarship program for Ivy Tech Community College, sponsoring exchange student cultural programs and children's literacy initiatives. The Noblesville Rotary Club also regularly welcomes distinguished speakers on a variety of topics.
 The club meets on the first and third Thursday of each month at 7:30am at Ginger's Café in Noblesville. Visitors are welcome anytime, no RSVP necessary. For more information, go to www.noblesvillerotaryclub.org.
