FACES OF HAMILTON COUNTY
People who call our community their own.

What makes Catie Steele smile? "I love puppies. I don't really like big dogs though because if they jump up on me I don't really like them. I love little puppies. I love little cute ones," said the 9-year-old Noblesville resident, a fourth-grader at Stony Creek Elementary School in Noblesville. She started classes on Monday after a two-month summer break. What is she looking forward to most in school this year? "I really like everything about school." Favorite subject? "Writing, I love to write." Favorite school lunch menu item? "French toast." Ms. Molly Broviak, a Noblesville High School graduate, is Catie's fourth-grade teacher this school year. Most fun she had all summer? "I played softball. I played softball a lot." She had her final tournament on Saturday. Catie plays piano. What else? "I love to sing." She had so much fun attending five different camps over the summer. "I've done basketball camp, volleyball camp, gymnastics camp, a ninja camp and golf." Most fun camp? "The ninja camp. We got to do crazy stuff." She is the daughter of Matthew and Shanda Steele. She was found visiting the Stony Creek Elementary School booth manned by Stony Creek Elementary principal Heidi Karst during the Noblesville Schools Back-to-School Bash on Friday at the new Beaver Stadium. Read more about the Back-to-School Bash in today's edition of The Times.

in August is the Art Fair on the Square. It's when juried artists near and far show and sell their art on the Historic Hamilton County Courthouse Square. There is always lots to take in at the Art Fair. It's a good event to see lots of artists in one place. Many local artists as well as artists from across the state, will show and sell their work. The Art Fair on the Square is 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free. There are more than 60 talented artists from across the region featuring oils, watercolor, pastels, pottery, handcrafted jewelry, stained glass and photography. There will be art demonstrations, live music, interactive exhibits and family fun. Sue Payne, the most recent past president of HCAA, has been spinning and weaving for 40 years and was fortunate to learn the craft from "incredible weavers" at Conner Prairie, where she is a member of the textiles staff and leads the museum's youth spinning

Fishers Police Respond to Shots Fired Into a Residence

On Monday night, Fishers police responded to multiple reports of shots fired in the 10900 block of Veon Dr., southwest of E. 131st Street and Promise Road. Officers contacted the homeowners and determined no one inside the home was injured. Further investigation determined that a bullet had traveled into a nearby home, and no one in that home was injured. Detectives and evidence technicians responded to assist with the investigation. It is believed the suspect(s) fled the area in a vehicle. No vehicle description is available at this time. There is no known on-going threat to the public. Anyone that has information

Want to Help Others? Join the Noblesville Lions Club

You may have seen a sign for the Lions Club as you entered Noblesville. You may have seen Lions handing out candy in the Fourth of July parade with our mascot, Stanley. You may have even had a great meal at our annual Pork Chop Dinner and Pancake Breakfast. But who are the Lions and what is Lionism?

Lions International started in 1917 in Chicago Illinois. Led by the simple motto of "We Serve," Lions Clubs quickly grew in towns and cities around the world with members working to help where help is needed. The ideal expressed as "Lionism" is to find projects and areas of need and help, not for any personal gain, but for the knowledge of doing something to make the world just a little better.

The Noblesville Lions Club was founded in 1942 and they are celebrating their 80th anniversary this year. The Club's primary focus is helping the kids of Noblesville, particularly around vision and hunger. They do this by providing free eye exams to all 3rd, 5th, and 7th grade students at each school as well as younger kids at many day care facilities and other locations by appointment.

They also work with the Boys and Girls Club of Noblesville, Fueled for School and many other local projects as well as giving six scholarships annually to Noblesville and Hamilton Heights High School seniors for their continuing studies. Lions' members come from all backgrounds and have a lot of fun working on projects and fundraisers.

The Club will be hosting an Information Open House next Wednesday at Ginger's Café, 1111 S. 10th St., from 6-7 p.m. If you would like to know more about what the club does to help the community, join them at the meeting. You can find out more on the Lions' Facebook page at <https://www.facebook.com/noblesvillelionsclub> or visit our website at <https://e-clubhouse.org/sites/noblesville>.

What Should We Do About Pollution?

Dear Editor,

The best way to reduce air pollution is to fight it at its source.

China is the biggest producer of air pollution in the world.

So, we (the world) should end all trade with China until it cleans all its spewing of pollution.

The shortest distance between two points is a straight line. This is the "straight line" solution to reduce air pollution in the world.

Community First Bank of Indiana Hires Bryant and Pleva as Commercial Lenders

This is Your Community. This is Your Bank.

Robb Blume, President and CEO of Community First Bank of Indiana, is pleased to welcome Esther Bryant and Adam Pleva to the bank's Commercial Lending team.

Esther Bryant joined Community First Bank in July as Assistant Vice President, Commercial Lender. A graduate of Ball State University, Esther brings 5 years of industry experience with a focus on alternative lending. Through her time working at a nonprofit small business lender, she has developed a deep understanding of SBA 7(a) lending that she looks forward to sharing with her clients. Outside of work, Esther is an avid runner and a former BSU Track and Cross-Country athlete.

Adam Pleva joined

Community First Bank in July as Vice President, Commercial Lender. A graduate of Ball State University, Adam brings close to 20 years of industry experience to the team. Throughout his career, he has specialized in the lending needs of a variety of industries nationwide including Insurance Agents/Brokers, Franchise Sales, and more. A proud Eagle Scout and local youth sports volunteer, Adam is thrilled to focus on serving the banking needs of the Hamilton County community he calls home. When not helping businesses with their lending needs, you will find Adam biking, hiking, golfing, and traveling with his family.

Scott Hammersley, Commercial Loan Group

Esther Bryant

Manager at Community First Bank, said, "We are excited to have Esther and Adam join our team. Their expertise and experience, such as with alternative lending, will be a key factor in our future success in Hamilton and Marion Counties. We hire team players with infectious enthusiasm for helping local businesses thrive, and these two definitely align with those values."

Community First Bank (CFB) was chartered in 2003 in Kokomo,

Adam Pleva

Indiana and is committed to keeping outstanding customer service, local decision-making, and relationship-building at its core. The locally owned and operated bank currently has branches in Indianapolis, Kokomo, Westfield, and Noblesville. CFB has been named as one of the Best Places to Work in Indiana for 8 consecutive years by the Indiana Chamber of Commerce. Additional information can be found at www.CFBIndiana.com.

AG Rokita Helps Form Anti-Robocall Litigation Task Force

After years of fighting intrusive robocalls, Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita said that Indiana is one of the leaders of the nationwide Anti-Robocall Litigation Task Force, which will include 50 attorneys general.

The task force will investigate and take legal action against the telecommunications companies responsible for bringing a majority of foreign robocalls into our country. This bipartisan national task force has one goal: to stop illegal robocalls.

"Robocalls aren't just a Hoosier problem. They are a nationwide problem," Rokita said. "That is why I am proud to lead my fellow attorneys general in the fight against these scammers and robocallers. If the telecom industry won't police itself, this unprecedented task force will."

The new task force, led by Indiana, Ohio, and North Carolina attorneys general, has issued 20 civil investigative demands to 20 gateway providers and other entities that are allegedly responsible for a majority of foreign robocall traffic. Gateway providers that bring foreign traffic into the U.S. telephone network have a responsibility to ensure the traffic is legal, but these providers are not taking sufficient action to stop robocall traffic. In many cases, they appear to be intentionally turning a blind eye in exchange for steady revenue. The task force will focus on the bad actors throughout the telecommunications industry to help reduce robocallers' assault on Hoosiers.

Rokita is committed to stopping illegal and unwanted calls. According to the National Consumer Law Center and Electronic Privacy Information Center, over 33 million scam robocalls are made to Americans every day. These scam calls include Social Security Administration fraud targeting seniors, Amazon scams targeting consumers, and many other scams harassing all consumers, including some of our most vulnerable citizens. An estimated $29.8 billion dollars was stolen through scam calls in 2021. Most of this scam robocall traffic originates overseas.

"I am a strong defender of our nation's borders in every aspect," Rokita said. "This philosophy applies to foreign robocallers and scammers who also attack our country through telecommunication and attempt to take advantage of our people's good nature."

The task force is focused on shutting down the providers that profit from this illegal scam traffic and refuse to take steps to otherwise mitigate these scam calls. The targeted entities are responsible for 60% of robocalls.

Rokita offers the following tips to avoid scams and unwanted calls:

- Be wary of callers who specifically ask you to pay by gift card, wire transfer, or cryptocurrency. For example, the Internal Revenue Service does not accept iTunes gift cards.
- Look out for prerecorded calls from imposters posing as government agencies. Typically, the Social Security Administration does not make phone calls to individuals.
- If you suspect fraudulent activity, immediately hang up and do not provide any personal information.
- Contact our Consumer Protection Division at 1-888-834-9969 or donotcall@atg.in.gov.
- Add your number to the Indiana Do Not Call List

Indiana Homeland Security Training for Civil Unrest Violence

Indiana Department of Homeland Security employees are teaming up with local first responders in northern Indiana to test emergency plans in response to a scenario where civil unrest has the potential to turn violent.

Operation Unify: Civil Unrest Functional Exercise will take place today at Trine University in Angola.

IDHS has been working with first responders in the northern part of the state to revise and update their plans, now they will validate these plans during a functional exercise. A functional exercise allows exercise participants to perform their duties in a simulated operational environment.

Indiana Department of Homeland Security

Established in 2005, the Indiana Department of Homeland Security (IDHS) leads the way to a safer and more secure Indiana. With jurisdictions involving emergency management, building code enforcement, as well as training and certification for first responders around the state, IDHS works to provide a safe, secure and resilient Indiana. For more information about IDHS, visit dhs.in.gov.

Evaluators will be onsite to watch the actions and decisions made and will offer suggestions on how participants can improve their response.

Note: This is a functional exercise. There will be no movement of personnel and resources as exercise play will be simulated.

IDHS partners with local authorities to create, revise and validate emergency response plans for many types of emergencies or disasters. This scenario was chosen to help first responders test their plans and does not reflect any ongoing threat to Indiana. This event is not open to the public.

Applications Now Open for Teaching and Early Graduation Scholarships

Four scholarship opportunities for Indiana students are open for the 2022-23 school year, according to the Indiana Commission for Higher Education. Funding is available for Black and Hispanic and Latino student teachers, those who plan to teach in high-need fields, such as math, science or Special Education, and those who graduated from high school at least one year early.

Scholarships for Future Educators:

- William A. Crawford Minority Teacher Scholarship: Open to minority students (defined as Black or Hispanic and Latino individuals) who intend to pursue or are currently pursuing a course of study that would enable them to teach in an accredited Indiana school. Application deadline: August 31, 2022.

Scholarships for Future Educators:

- Earline S. Rogers Student Teaching Scholarship: This scholarship is available for minority students (defined as Black or Hispanic and Latino individuals) who plan to participate in student teaching or a school administration internship as part of their degree requirements. Priority will be given to student teaching applicants. Application deadline: September 30, 2022.

- Student Teaching Scholarship for High-

INDIANA COMMISSION for HIGHER EDUCATION

Need Fields: The Student Teaching Scholarship for High-Need Fields is available for students who plan to teach Special Education (any grade), middle school math, middle school science, high school math or high school science.

Application deadline: September 30, 2022.

Students who receive any of the scholarships for future educators agree to apply for teaching positions at an accredited school in Indiana and, if hired, teach in the state for at least three years.

- Mitch Daniels Early Graduation Scholarship: The Mitch Daniels Early Graduation Scholarship is a one-time $4,000 scholarship for students who graduate from a publicly supported high school at least one year early. Application deadline: August 31, 2022.

Apply through ScholarTrack. For instructions on how to apply, and for a full list of eligibility requirements visit learnmoreindiana.org/finaid.

"The cost of college is the main factor for those deciding to pursue education and training beyond high school," said Indiana Commissioner for Higher Education Chris Lowery. "Each year, the state makes $385 million of state financial aid available to Hoosiers, but for students to use the aid, they must apply by the deadline. Don't miss out on these opportunities to make the cost of going to college manageable for you and your family."

Visit www.scholartrack.in.gov to apply for the scholarships or call the Commission's Financial Aid Support Center at (888) 528-4719 for assistance.

Indiana Grown Marketplace Allows You to Shop Local at the Indiana State Fair

The Indiana State Fair is in full swing at the Indiana State Fairgrounds and Event Center. The multi-week event has many more days of operation left and plenty of opportunities to shop local at the Indiana Grown Marketplace in the Agriculture/Horticulture Building.

"Like many Hoosiers, I enjoy shopping local in support of Hoosier farmers and small businesses," said Lt. Gov. Suzanne Crouch. "That is why the Indiana Grown Marketplace is one of my first and favorite stops at the Indiana State Fair. It is always fun to see what is new each year."

Shoppers can be immersed in a storefront solely featuring Indiana grown, processed, packaged or produced products. In addition to shopping, the store also features educational displays, product sampling and demonstrations from artisans showcasing their craft.

The Indiana Grown Marketplace at the state fair boasts more than 80 vendors and contains nearly 500 unique products, including hand crafted sauces, salsa, drink mixes, popcorn, spices and more. Shoppers can also find ready-to-eat products like cured meats, chocolates and candies. Does the August heat have you down? Stop at the Indiana Grown store for cold local root beer or bottled tea. There are also a variety of artisan made products you can use daily such as, wool dryer balls, yarn, skincare regimes, hand poured candles and more.

"The Indiana Grown Marketplace at the Indiana State Fair is an incredible opportunity for our members to market their products and for consumers wanting to support Hoosier businesses," said Bruce Kettler, director of the Indiana State Department of Agriculture. "I encourage everyone to stop by and support local businesses on their Indiana State Fair visit. There is truly something for everyone."

There is plenty of time left to shop and explore at the Indiana Grown Marketplace at the great Indiana State Fair. The Indiana State Fair runs until Aug. 21 (closed Mondays and Tuesdays) and the Agriculture/Horticulture building, where the Indiana Grown Marketplace is located, is open from 9 a.m. - 8 p.m.

Doctors, Hospitals Push Back on Abortion Bill

By Casey Smith
A Republican-backed bill that would ban virtually all abortions in Indiana enters the next round of debate Tuesday, while hospitals and physicians across the state push back against the proposal.

Senators debated the bill for more than three hours on Saturday before voting to advance the bill to the House during a special legislative session. Senate Bill 1 seeks to ban abortion at conception except for narrow exceptions for fatal fetal anomalies, rape, incest and the life of the mother.

Lawmakers in the House are scheduled to take up the measure in a day-long committee hearing Tuesday.

Republican House Speaker Todd Huston said Monday there are “a lot of issues that were brought up” in the Senate. Now, lawmakers in the House “want to take a closer look at” those ideas and concerns.

“We’re going to come forward with what we think is the best, thoughtful policy that protects life and supports women and children across the state,” Huston said Monday. “It needs some work. And I’m confident that (the committee) will do the work to improve it.”

Indiana hospitals ‘concerned’ about abortion restrictions

The Indiana Hospital Association, which represents more than 170 hospitals across the state, called for the General Assembly to ensure “physician protections” as lawmakers debate Indiana’s response to the U.S. Court decision overturning Roe v. Wade.

Association President Brian Tabor said in a statement Friday that the organization is “concerned” that Indiana is “creating an atmosphere that will be perceived as antagonistic to physicians.”

“As state-level decisions continue to unfold, we caution our public officials from sending signals that could further exacerbate our health care workforce shortage and threaten access to care,” he said. “We urge lawmakers to protect all medical professionals from liability and other repercussions when working in good faith to comply with state laws while providing lifesaving care to Hoosier moms and babies.”

The Indiana State Medical Association echoed similar concerns.

“Indiana cannot have an effective health care system if the training and expertise of physicians is not respected and they are under constant threat of political interference for practicing medicine and assisting their patients,” said ISMA executive vice president Julie Reed.

IU Health, Indiana’s largest health care network, said it also wants to “ensure” that physicians and patients “have clarity when making decisions about pregnancy.” That includes the ability to address not only life-saving interventions, but also to intercede when a pregnant woman’s health is at risk — and to make sure providers are not criminalized when doing so.

“The bill’s restrictions on a physician’s ability to do what is medically proven and appropriate for the health and life of a pregnant patient, plus the threat of criminalization, impact our ability to provide safe and effective patient care and could deter physicians seeking to live and practice healthcare in Indiana,” the hospital system said in a statement Saturday.

Doctors push back, too

The statements build on opposition from numerous doctors who testified against the bill in the Senate last week.

Doctors and nurses, representing groups including the Indiana State Medical Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, all opposed the measure.

Maternal-fetal medicine specialist Dr. Mary Abernathy said an abortion ban will increase maternal and infant mortality.

“My concern is that OB-providers in rural areas will simply decide to stop providing maternity care or choose never to restart with our program,” Abernathy said. “I fear that they will become worried that they might run afoul of the law, somehow.”

Dr. Amy Caldwell, an OBGYN representing the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, said her colleagues are “fearful to do their jobs,” noting that language in the bill is “unclear” and could put in jeopardy the licenses of medical professionals who perform abortions for any reason.

House Speaker Todd Huston announced the following schedule for the Indiana House of Representatives during the week of Aug. 1.

Tuesday, Aug. 2
9 a.m. Courts and Criminal Code committee meeting on Senate Bill 1, the abortion-restricting bill, in the House Chamber. Members of the public will be allowed to provide testimony at this time.

9 a.m. Ways and Means will hear Senate Bill 2, the wraparound services bill, in Room 404. Public testimony will be taken.

The House will convene for session 30 minutes after the conclusion of the hearing on SB 1.

Wednesday, Aug. 3
No House Session
Thursday, Aug. 4
9 a.m. House session

At this stage, lawmakers may offer, debate and vote on amendments to the bill. Filed amendments will be available for review at iga.in.gov.

Friday, Aug. 5
9 a.m. House Session

The House will convene for bill(s) on third reading. Debate on those bills will occur at this stage, and a final vote is expected to be taken on them.

“Our goal is to reduce the number of abortions. The solution is not to ban them,” Caldwell said, emphasizing that the solution is access to “comprehensive contraception.”

Bill author Sen. Sue Glick, R-LaGrange, said Saturday she hopes those concerns are addressed in the House, emphasizing her worry that the current bill “interferes” with doctor-patient relationships.

What happens next
The House Courts and Criminal Code Committee is scheduled to take up the bill starting at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Committee Chairperson Wendy McNamara, R-Evansville, did not indicate how long the committee expects to hear testimony on the bill, saying only that public comments will be heard “throughout the day.”

“We want people who can come here to the Statehouse to testify to be able to share their stories and share their interpretations of what the experiences might be in their life,” she said. “This is a contentious issue. It’s an emotional issue. We want to make sure that we’re exceptionally thoughtful as we go through the entire process.”

Huston added that this is a topic that has already “been talked about for a long time,” referring to the roughly six hours of testimony heard on the proposal in the Senate last week.

“At some point, you have to move forward with the process,” he said.

The House speaker said the abortion bill was sent to the courts committee — rather than to the Public Health Committee — because he “felt like it was the appropriate place to put it.”

“A lot of the subject matter that’s being discussed — the code cites and those types of things — are topics in code that chairwoman McNamara and the rest of the committee are used to,” Huston said.

Huston and McNamara said they expect additional amendments to the bill, but neither would say specifically what changes the House committee or full chamber might propose.

Both lawmakers said they thought exceptions for abortions in cases of rape and incest should remain in the bill. An amendment to strip the bill of the hot-button exception — which sets an 8-week limit on abortion for those age 16 or older — failed in the Senate last week.

McNamara additionally signaled possible changes to the bill’s requirement for women to submit a notarized affidavit to their doctor to access an abortion in cases of rape or incest.

“That topic is definitely up for discussion, and one that I would say is probably pretty contentious,” she said. “We want to make sure we’re conscientious of those people who experience trauma in rape and incest situations.”

Hoosiers Eye Sterilization as Abortion Ban Moves

By Whitney Downard

With an abortion ban almost certain following the Senate passage of a bill on Saturday, some Hoosiers are turning to long-term contraceptives, like IUDs, while others consider a more permanent option: sterilization.

Katie McHugh, an obstetrician-gynecologist and abortion provider in Indianapolis, said she has heard more people talking about seeking the procedure since the U.S. Supreme Court overturned federal abortion protections in late June.

“Most of the patients that I am seeing for abortion care are saying, ‘I will never put myself in this position again because in the future I may not be able to choose abortion,’” she said. “My colleagues are seeing an increase in requested surgical consults in their offices.”

McHugh said currently a majority of her practice is abortion care but she performs the full scope of reproductive healthcare, including sterilization and delivery.

Sterilization or tubal ligation, commonly referred to as “getting your tubes tied,” cuts the fallopian tube which connects the ovaries, where egg cells reside, from the uterus, where an embryo may implant and grow.

In recent years, tubal ligation has evolved to tubal removal, or salpingectomy, which extracts the entire tube, rather than leaving two severed ends, and reduces a person’s risk for ovarian cancer, as analyzed in the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology. Under a ligation, a patient could possibly find a specialist to repair the fallopian tube but couldn’t do so with a tubal removal, though the Mayo Clinic reports that reversals aren’t always effective.

Unlike a hysterectomy, which completely removes the uterus, patients can still get their periods with a tubal removal and, rarely, use in vitro fertilization to implant a fertilized egg and potentially give birth.

Tubal ligations and removals are considered an irreversible method of contraception and a permanent form of sterilization.

Paternalism in health-care limits options for parents

Some doctors won’t perform the procedures at all, while others require patients seeking the procedure to already have children or support from their partner.

A 2010 research article surveyed 1,154 OBGYNs and reported that as many as 70% of physicians “would attempt to dissuade her, depending on her characteristics.”

Over half, 59%, of physicians would discourage a 26-year-old patient whose partner disagreed but that percentage fell to 47% if the patient was 36 years old.

For a patient whose partner agreed, 32% would discourage the 26-year-old patient while just 10% would discourage the 36-year-old.

McHugh, the Indianapolis OBGYN, said she would assist a patient regardless of their partner’s buy-in or number of children. McHugh, along with 40 other Hoosier OBGYNs, appears on a crowd-sourced and widely shared list of doctors who will perform the procedure across the country regardless of “marital status or number of children.”

“Not every patient has that experience with every physician. Different physicians have different feelings about that and some physicians feel strongly that the partner should be included or that a patient should have already had children in order to make these decisions,” McHugh said. “That is not based on any guidance or evidence... without mincing words, it is a function of misogyny in medicine and paternalism.”

Paternalism, as McHugh uses it, occurs “when a physician or other healthcare professional makes decisions for a patient without the explicit consent of the patient,” according to the Missouri University School of Medicine. Doctors may believe they know their patient’s wants better than their patient.

Doctors may refuse to perform the surgery on a patient because they believe they will regret it later or find a new partner who wants children. This practice of considering the partner’s wants isn’t common for those who seek vasectomies, which are also considered a permanent form of sterilization.

“What we know from medical literature, as well as an outpouring of personal stories... is that most patients have to shop around to find a physicians that will listen to them and believe them when they say they don’t want to be a parent or that they feel their family size is complete,” McHugh said. “That’s the real tragedy – for a patient to feel that their physician is not hearing them and doesn’t respect their choice.”

Risks of sterilization lower than childbirth

McHugh said conversations with her patients on reproductive healthcare revolve around their decisions about their bodies – from their fertility to their ideal family size and parenting plans – as well as their careers and life goals.

“When people come to me and they talk about, ‘I never wanted to be a parent; that’s not going to change. I want this surgery so that I never have to worry about that.’ That is a completely valid and respectable position to take,” McHugh said. “I have no issues discussing that and planning for that surgery.”

Like any surgery, tubal removal comes with risks, including risks with anesthesia, blood clots, bleeding or infection, and possible damage to surrounding organs, including the uterus, bowel or bladder.

“I would never say that abortion does not have some risk – although in comparison to childbirth, it is exponentially safer,” McHugh said. “(Tubal removal) is not a procedure to be taken lightly... but it is certainly a safer procedure than undergoing a full pregnancy with all of the changes that happen in pregnancy and then the risks with delivery.”

Indiana has the third-highest maternal mortality rate in a country with the worst maternal health in the developed world. According to the Indiana Maternal Mortality Review Committee, 60 Hoosiers died in 2019 during or up to a year following a pregnancy. In comparison, just two people died in the country in 2018 due to complications from a legal abortion.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention do not report current numbers for deaths associated with tubal sterilizations, but reported 29 deaths between 1977 and 1981, with 11 deaths due to complications with general anesthesia.

Expense of procedure, consent form a hurdle for many

Despite the relative safety of the procedure, the cost can be prohibitive since some insurances don’t cover the full cost, which includes a full operating room and anesthesia.

To reduce the cost, some patients opt to schedule their tubal removal during their delivery, which McHugh said is the most convenient time for both the parent and the medical team.

McHugh said the uterus is much bigger than normal postpartum, making it more accessible for the physician. The tubal removal can be scheduled at the same time for someone receiving a Cesarean section, or C-section. For a vaginal delivery, the removal can be scheduled the next day under an epidural rather than general anesthesia, making it a safer procedure.

“Those are very accessible, very cost-effective times to do it because you’re already in the hospital and all of the charges are covered under the fee schedule covering the delivery,” McHugh said.

But for patients using Medicaid, which covered 39% of Indiana births in 2020, they must complete a consent form 30 days before the procedure, which complicates the timing for thousands of parents who qualify for emergency Medicaid during their pregnancy.

“This really basic and simple reproductive care procedure is made more complicated by our governmental processes,” McHugh said.

The 30-day waiting period stems from the atrocities of Indiana’s eugenics laws, starting in 1907 and ending in 1974. Over 2,300 Hoosiers were involuntarily sterilized to discourage “reproduction by the feeble-minded,” including those incarcerated – whether in jail or in an asylum – and “epileptics.”

According to the University of Vermont, Indiana’s sterilization efforts disproportionately targeted “Ishmaelites,” or Black Americans recently freed or who had escaped slavery, Native American tribe members and the poor. Medicaid coverage in Indiana seeks to provide healthcare for the poor, many of whom are people of color.

To deter physicians who might encourage their patients to be sterilized, the consent form requires 30 days between signatures and the procedure, now a national standard recognized by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

Indiana also requires Hoosiers seeking sterilization procedures be at least 21 years old and competent to make medical decisions.

Doctors anxiously await final bill

For now, doctors wait for legislators to make the final decision on abortion. Lawmakers have repeatedly said the abortion ban isn’t designed to change Hoosier access to contraception, but advocates have concerns. Republican senators turned down an amendment guaranteeing access to contraception last week.

“I’m very concerned and I am paying very close attention to what they are doing because I feel intensely scared about the ability to decide what happens to my body; I’m scared about my patients’ abilities to decide what happens to their bodies,” McHugh said. “I fear what this means for all of our privacy and all of our health care in the future.”

“relics” — family heirlooms and other items they’d brought with them when they came to Central Indiana.

Although meetings were held at several different sites, the ones at Eagletown were the largest in this area, attracting visitors from Boone, Clinton and Tipton Counties, in addition to Hamilton County.

Later newspaper accounts tended to just provide summaries of the events, but the stories from earlier years sometimes included interesting reminiscences, as well as an occasional pointed comment contrasting life in the early days with life at that time.

The following recollections, shared at an Eagletown meeting, appeared in the September 3, 1875 Noblesville Ledger:

Carmel dentist William Frost, a 40-year resident of Hamilton County, mused that when the county was new, finding someone to care for the sick wasn’t a problem. “. . . the trouble was, too many came. How is it now?”

Reverend Thomas Spencer of Adams Township, a 45-year county resident, described the early settlers’ “stake-and-rider bedsteads” that were “constructed by placing a post diagonal from one corner of the house, with a piece of timber attached to the wall on each side and clapboards thrown across.”

He also spoke of the abundance of wolves and deer, and related how one year he killed 27 deer so close to his home that his wife heard each gunshot.

Addison Boxley, the son of pioneer George Boxley and one of the founders of Boxley, stated that he’d arrived in Hamilton County 47 years earlier and had received his education while herding cattle.

He remarked that, although the pioneers experienced many hard times, they’d also had many good ones “for we loved one another then as people do not now.”

Thomas Lochlin, who’d lived in Hamilton County for 43 years, expressed the opinion that people speaking of times being hard in 1875 didn’t really know what hard times were. He pointed out that they used to build houses without nails, and told how he’d driven hogs to market for $1.25 per hundred. “Now we get $7, and think it too little.”

(I tried to identify Lochlin, but was unable to find any other references to him.)

“Mr. Mercer” (no first name was given and I couldn’t find any information on him, either,) said he’d come to Indiana in 1822. He remarked that he never saw a cooking stove or “fire-match” until he was 25 and never wore a factory shirt until he was 15.

Mary “Polly” Warren of Carmel described living for six months in a rail pen with a quilt for a “door shutter.” She told how she’d stayed alone for three weeks in a forest teeming with wolves. “. . . they might have come in and killed me, but they did not.”

Arcadia’s Dr. Amos Pettijohn recalled being informed in 1832 that all goods sold in Indianapolis were transported there from Cincinnati by one team of oxen — a trip that took three weeks.

As an interesting aside, while researching Dr. Pettijohn, I discovered he’d been a surgeon at a Union army hospital in Washington, D. C. during the Civil War.

When the war broke out, he and a cousin, who was also a doctor, felt only one of them should enlist, leaving the other behind to look after their two families. They tossed a coin to decide who would stay and who would go.

Presumably, Dr. Pettijohn lost the toss.

Hamilton County Artists’ Association Art Fair on the Square will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday on the Historic Courthouse Square in downtown Noblesville.

program, in its 19th year. She will bring some of her Conner Prairie youth volunteers on Saturday to demonstrate the art.

The HCAA tent will feature several HCAA artists traditionally on the north side of the Square during this Art Fair on the Square.

I’ve attended the Fair many times. And there is an amazing display of paintings, abstract acrylics, pastels, photography, wearable art, jewelry in all shapes and metals and lots of interesting pottery.

But this year, the day is going to be even bigger. In fact, the HCAA is calling the day a “double header.”

Not only because the HCAA encourages folks who are heading out to the Saturday morning Noblesville Farmers Market to also visit the Art Fair on the Square. But also because when Art Fair on the Square ends at 4 p.m., there will only be a two-hour break until Noblesville Street Dance kicks off at 6 p.m. and runs until 11 p.m. on the Square. Many of the artists will still be set up into the evening.

Noblesville Main Street’s annual dance that was once a mid-July tradition, was moved up to the beginning of June in 2021, and then moved to Aug. 6 earlier this year.

The Street Dance, this year sponsored by River-view Health, is a family-friendly event featuring food, drinks, live music, local vendors and more in historic downtown Noblesville. This year’s event features a touch-a-truck (and tractor) event, sponsored by Reynolds Farm Equipment. An ice-cream eating contest will begin at 7:15 p.m., with signup at the orange Noblesville Main Street tent.

The weather forecast for Saturday is 85 F and mostly sunny. So it will be a great time to take in the sunshine, shopping, beautiful art and great food around Noblesville’s lovely Courthouse Square, then hang out and stay around for the Noblesville Street Dance.

There is always something interesting going on at HCAA’s Birdie Gallery, 195 S. Fifth St., Noblesville. Upcoming events include: Paint a still life with artist Pam Newell on Aug. 13-14; Paint portraits from photos with artist Stephanie Spay on Oct. 15-16; and Making Watercolors Work for You, with Stephen Edwards, Sept. 15-16.

The HCAA invites all photographers to enter the 2022 Open Lens photography competition in its seventh year, with entries due by Oct. 1.

HCAA is always looking for sponsors for its 501(c)(3) organization and Art Fair on the Square.

Want TO GO?

What: Hamilton County Artists’ Association’s Art Fair on the Square featuring more than 60 juried artists and vendors. When: 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

What else: Noblesville Street Dance follows from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday.

Where: Historic Hamilton County Courthouse Square, downtown Noblesville.

Cost: Free admission. Info: <https://www.hcaa-in.org/>

The weekend will kick off with Noblesville Main Street’s Music & All That Jazz, sponsored by Gordon Insurance partners, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Friday, featuring the David Hartman Band, followed by dancing, food and libations at Noble Coffee & Tea’s Salsa on the Square event from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Parking for these events is available in the new Levinson parking garage at Eighth and Maple, and at the even newer Hamilton County Parking Garage at Eighth and Clinton streets.

All of these events take place on the Courthouse Square, such a beautiful, wonderful place for people to enjoy.
