FACES OF HAMILTON COUNTY

What makes Nick Boland smile? "Flying," said the 63-year-old Noblesville resident. The president of the Noblesville Chapter No. 67 of the Experimental Aircraft Association was found volunteering in the food-serving line at the chapter's June Fly-In and Pancake Breakfast at Noblesville Airport where aviation enthusiasts could see homebuilt, restored and military aircraft among the 70 small aircrafts that flew in, flew out (above) and were on display during the event. He said more than 1,100 meals were served during the three-hour breakfast. On the following day, the chapter's Young Eagles program had 80 youth, ages 8-17, sign up to attend at the Airport, where all would have the opportunity to take a free airplane ride with local pilots, however, the event was canceled due to weather. EAA has a program called AeroEducate, designed for youth that helps educate youth through STEM activities, with aviation as the inspiration. He was born and raised in Illinois and came to Hamilton County nearly 30 years ago for work as a software engineer. Retired from his day job, he spends his time as a flight instructor at Sheridan Airport just north of Sheridan. He has a wife, Jeanette, of more than 25 years, and three children, a U.S. Army Apache helicopter pilot, a computer programmer and one in software quality for Epic Systems. He is part of the Commemorative Air Force and flew in a yellow PT-26 during the EAA fly-in. He also has a pink Sierra aircraft and is co-owner of an Aeronca Champ. Why does he like to fly? "I always wanted to be an astronaut. My uncle was a Huey helicopter pilot in Vietnam when I was tiny, and I think that inspired me. It's unique, special." The next fly-in is 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. Aug. 19, with the next Young Eagles Rally at 9 a.m. Aug. 20 at Noblesville Airport. Money raised at the fly-ins sends youth to the EAA Air Academy.

Once again I'm overdue to acknowledge reader responses. (It's been REALLY busy.)

After the columns on Hamilton County's "Rainbow of Peace" ran,

I heard from Rev. Dr. Marlene Pedigo of Westfield, a recorded Friends woman in the ministry who holds a Masters of Divinity and a Doctorate of Ministry.

She noted that Westfield's Friends United Meeting began in 1902. (I'd used the original 1835 date for them because that was what quakermeetings.com

Rev. Dr. Pedigo also said she's working on a book about Hamilton County Friends women in the ministry in the 1800s that she hopes will be published next year.

Pam Ferber reminded me how we always used to spend Memorial Day in the 1960s listening to Sid Collins' radio broadcast of the "Greatest Spectacle in Racing" (aka the Indianapolis 500.)

If you wanted to keep track of the race back then, the radio broadcast was your only option other than attending in person. In 1963, there wasn't even a delayed television broadcast. (We could, however, watch the money being handed out at the Victory Banquet the following

And sharing how she always wanted to be a pilot.

"I wanted to fly jets in the Navy," said the 34-year-old Noblesville wife and mother of two young sons. But when she became a teenager, life happened. She started working a job and having boyfriends and realized she wanted to stay home and commute to college. So she studied education at IUPUI and became a teacher, which she loves.

After getting married 10 years ago and after feeling like her sons were old enough to understand, she decided to get her private pilot's license. She took two years to get her license but is so glad that she did. Her first solo was a year ago in August. Her father, Tom Lozier, was her first passenger.

won a trip to Oshkosh, Wis., to the annual weeklong air show.

In the essay, she shared the story of watching her dad restore the 1929 Taperwing Waco, built as an air racer and named Cream Soda, a plane that he bought in 1986 as buckets of parts and an engine. And remembering when she was told that the plane crashed but everybody in her family was OK.

She also shared with me that when she was 2 months old, her mom was in a Stearman crash and has never gotten back into a small plane.

But these crashes didn't affect Moon, always wanting to be in a plane or fly one.

'I love it. I feel freedom. I feel excitement," she said.

She recalled when her dad's Taperwing was rebuilt. "She was more appreciated, more loved." Then there was an inflight fire, and the Taperwing was rebuilt again, with her own sons spending Saturdays at the airport watching and learning, Moon said.

In 2021, she and her brother started digging into the Taper-

Can Mike Pence Win The Indiana Presidential Primary?

BRIAN HOWEY Howey Political Report

House had done, which was to win the presidency without carrying his home state primary.

former vice presi-

other mod-

what no

didate for

the White

There was a reason why Nixon didn't win the GOP California primary. Its favorite son, Gov. Ronald Reagan, was on the ballot, so Nixon didn't even bother qualifying.

Another former vice president named Mike Pence is seeking the presidency in 2024. For the former Indiana governor, the idea that he can use his home state as a bulwark and springboard over the 10-person (and growing) field remains in doubt. Pence picked up the endorsement of Gov. Eric Holcomb last week. But so far as I can tell, that is not translating into any degree of widespread support.

Last Tuesday, Hamilton County Republican Chairman Mario Massillamany announced a July 12 fundraiser for Florida Gov. Ron DeSantis, coming in Pence's current home county. "This event is being hosted by State Rep. Chris Jeter and Bob Grand," Massillamany said in an email to his constituents.

Grand gravitating toward DeSantis is a big deal. He didn't want to comment when I talked to him on Wednesday, citing his long-time friendship with Pence. While he played a big role in elevating Pence toward the 2012 gubernatorial nomination which essentially coaxed the congressman out of the presidential cycle that year at a time when Gov. Mitch Daniels was pondering a candidacy, he has decided to back the Florida governor. Holcomb offered his support for Pence in a tweet last Thursday, saying, "I've known Mike Pence for decades. Throughout those years, he's remained as honest as the day is long. As one Hoosier governor to another, I look forward to supporting him as the weeks and months ahead unfold."

Holcomb told me in Evansville last Friday, "It was a no-brainer for me. I'm for the home team. I've known him the longest." Pence had elevated Holcomb to the vacant lieutenant governor job in February 2016, creating his historic "107day campaign" when Pence resigned his second gubernatorial nomination to run for vice president that July.

Holcomb added that Pence articulated worthy issues on NBC's "Meet The Press" the week before, mentioning balancing the budget, forging immigration reform and restoring America's standing in the world. "Just in that one interview, he addressed all three of those buckets," Holcomb said.

But that so far has not translated to widespread support. I talked with several Republican legislators in Evansville last Friday; none was poised to jump on the Pence bandwagon. State Rep. Wendy McNamara said that there have been no caucus conversations about backing Pence, or the presidential race, for that matter.

That Rep. Jeter has signed on to the DeSantis effort reveals a third option. Trump will likely be backed by a significant portion of the 70-strong GOP caucus despite the fact that he faces more than 70 felony charges, about half of them stemming from his keeping classified documents at his Florida resort on a ballroom stage and next to his toilet.

While there has been no recent public polling in Indiana so far this year, the perception is that Trump remains popular with Hoosier Republicans. In a December 2022 Bellwether Research Poll in Indiana, Trump led with 39%, DeSantis was at 28% and Pence had 13%. In 2022, Pence backed Republican Ron Turpin for the open SD14 seat in Fort Wayne. But it had little impact as Tyler Johnson won easily with 52% in a three-way race (Turpin received 38%). Pence was in Fort Wayne last week, enthusiastically welcomed to headquarters by Allen County Chairman Steve Shine. According to WBOI, Pence met with about 50 supporters and asked for them to donate, volunteer and pray for him and his campaign as he goes against his former boss and running mate Donald Trump. "I'm more convinced than ever that Republicans know our party needs new leadership to carry us to victory," Pence said.

Thus far, Pence has been a distant third in the Real Clear Politics national composite with 5.8%, compared to 52.1% for Trump and 21.5% for DeSantis. Pence appears to be staking his long-shot hopes in Iowa, saying that it is the early state most like Indiana. In the RCP Iowa polling composite, he is a distant fourth at 3.7%, trailing Trump (46%), DeSantis (24.7%) and Haley (3.7%).

But it's early. Future presidents named Barack Obama and Jimmy Carter were polling in single digits at this point in their races.

Home state strength is important. Only Presidents James K. Polk, Woodrow Wilson, Nixon, and Trump have won the White House while losing their home state in a general election. DeSantis finds himself in a similar situation as Pence. A Florida Atlantic University poll in May showed Trump leading in that state with 59% to 31%.

In a 2020 Washington Post article titled "If you don't win your own state in the primary, you're probably not going to be the president," national columnist Philip Bump observes, "No party nominee has ever lost his or her home state since" Nixon. "In fact, it's fairly uncommon for candidates to lose their home states at all, unless they've already dropped out of the race Can he now pick up widespread support among his fellow Hoosiers? We'll see.

The new Affordable Dentures & Implants practice, located at 8690 E 96th Street in Fishers, offers patients a variety of tooth replacement options – at an affordable price – to create a new, natural smile that not only looks great, but restores a patient's chewing ability, helps prevent bone loss, and transforms a patient's confidence to smile again.

Affordable Dentures & Implants offers dental implant procedures that can restore the look, feel and function of a patient's teeth.

Dental implants provide many benefits for denture wearers. Denture wearers often experience challenges eating, talking, and interacting with others, and find their dentures to be less secure than natural teeth.

An Affordable Dentures & Implants patient enjoys his new smile.

Dental implants help secure a patient's denture, so the patient does not experience these issues.

The advantages of dental implants include:

- Protection of Existing Teeth and Bone Structure: A dental implant takes the place of a missing tooth. The dental implant is attached directly to the jaw. As a result, it prevents any remaining teeth from shifting and causing damage or bone loss.
- Better Feel and Function: If a patient has been missing teeth for a while, they often share how much of an inconvenience it is in their daily life--especially when it comes to eating. A dental implant allows patients to eat the foods they once enjoyed.
- Restored Confidence: Teeth affect how a patient speaks and smiles, which also affects their sense of confidence. Dental implant surgery restores teeth. In turn, patients may find it easier to smile for pictures, and communicate with friends and loved ones.

humid weather, but it can also be the result of other conditions as well.

The medical term for swimmer's ear is otitis externa, indicating inflammation of the ear canal and less frequently, the external ear. This is in contrast to the more common otitis media, an infection of the middle ear (the air-filled cavity just behind the ear drum).

The number of people who suffer from swimmer's ear in the U.S. is about four per 1,000 per year. It afflicts males and females in equal numbers and tends to present between seven and twelve vears of age, though older people can certainly be affected.

The ear wax (cerumen) that everyone is always trying to clean out of their ears is actually there to protect the external ear canal. There is a delicate balance of too much or too little cerumen. If there is not enough present, the ear canal can dry out, crack, and become infected. If there is too much, the ear canal can become too moist. This leads to swelling and breakdown of the skin lining the ear canal.

The majority of cases of swimmer's ear are caused by too much wax. This allows water contaminated with bacteria or fungi to enter the ear canal and invade the broken down skin. Since swimmers often swim in contaminated water, they are more prone to develop this problem.

There are other conditions that can lead to otitis externa. Trauma to the ear canal is one of the more common ones. This is where one should heed grandma's advice to never put anything smaller than your elbow in your ear. Items such as Q-tips, bobby pins, and paper clips do not belong in the ear canal. Repeated use of earplugs, ear buds, or hearing aids can also cause trauma and trapping of moisture. Other skin conditions such as dermatitis and seborrhea that can increase the risk for infection. People with small ear canals are also prone to more frequent infections. Species of Pseudomonas bacteria are the most common organisms causing otitis externa. Staphylococci and Streptococci can also cause the infection. Fungi play a role in about five percent of cases. Most people recover from otitis externa with minimal intervention. However, people with certain medical conditions can develop severe problems. Diabetics and those with compromised immune systems need to be careful. Simple otitis externa can lead to a severe condition called malignant otitis externa.

The malignant form results from the infection spreading to the tissues around the ear. It should be suspected in those who have a lot of redness and/ or swelling around the ear. These people need hospitalization for intravenous antibiotics. If left untreated, this condition can be fatal in up to half the cases.

People who have swimmer's ear typically have some exposure to water. Itching may be the initial symptom followed by worsening pain over the next couple of days. The ear may start to drain white material with a foul odor.

Patients may experience a pressure or fullness in the ear and may also develop hearing loss if the infection causes the ear canal to swell shut. Pain when tugging on the ear or when pushing on the little flap in front of the opening to the ear canal is a reliable physical finding for otitis externa. This usually doesn't cause pain with middle ear infections.

Treatment is curative over 90 percent of the time. Most people improve in two to three days and are back to normal in a week or so.

There are many treatments available, but prescription antibiotic drops work best. One of the oldest agents around is a milky fluid that contains two different antibiotics and a steroid. However, one of the antibiotics can sometimes cause some hearing loss and the other antibiotic may cause a local allergic reaction.

The antibiotic drops ciprofloxacin and ofloxacin are most commonly recommended. If there is fungal involvement, doctors may prescribe simple acetic acid (vinegar) solutions or topical antifungal medication. Occasionally the pain is so intense that oral narcotics may be required. Patients who suffer from recurrent bouts of swimmer's ear should employ preventative measures. A half-and-half mixture of white vinegar and 70 percent isopropyl alcohol works well. A couple of drops in each ear after getting the ears wet can be very effective at prevention. I also recommend directing a blow dryer on the lowest setting into the ear canal after bathing or swimming. Avoid dryers that are noisy that may cause hearing damage.

Are Electric Bug Zappers Safe For The Environment

EARTHTALK

Dear EarthTalk: Is it OK for the environment to use an electric bug zapper to keep the mosquitoes at bay in summer?

With summer comes, many of us seek solutions to combat the nuisance and potential health risks of mosquitoes. Electric bug zappers have gained in popularity, but while these little electrocution stations do kill some adult mosquitoes, many wonder what costs they may bring to ecosystems in general.

Electric bug zappers attract mosquitoes and other flying insects using ultraviolet light. Upon contact, they are electrocuted. By eliminating these pests, bug zappers help mitigate the risk of mosquito-borne illnesses like malaria, dengue fever and West Nile virus, while of course minimizing mosquito bites. Bug zappers do not rely on harmful toxins, offering a chemical-free approach to mosquito control. This is particularly significant where children, pets and beneficial insects like bees and butterflies are present.

That brings up the dark sides of electric bug zappers. For one, they can disrupt local ecosystems by indiscriminately killing various insect species, including beneficial ones. Aside from bees and butterflies, beetles and other insects that play vital roles in pollination and local ecological balance, also get destroyed, leading to overall negative consequences for plant reproduction and biodiversity.

Another drawback to electric bug zappers is that they need electricity to operate continuously. Depending on the model and usage, they can consume a significant amount of energy, thus contributing to climate change and environmental degradation if highly effective in controlling mosquitoes. While they may attract and kill some adult mosquitoes, they do not address the root cause of mosquito infestations: breeding grounds. Mosquitoes primarily breed in stagnant water, thus eliminating these sources remains crucial for effective control. Relying solely on bug zappers may provide a false sense of security while neglecting essential preventive measures.

That said, adopting an integrated approach to mosquito control is essential. This includes eliminating standing water, using mosquito repellents and wearing protective clothing. By combining these measures, individuals can reduce their reliance on bug zappers while effectively managing mosquito populations.

Yet another way to marshal nature in keeping mosquitoes at bay is to use natural predators such as bats, dragonflies and birds to aid in mosquito control. Creating habitats that attract these beneficial species, such as water features for dragonflies or installing bat boxes, can provide long-term, sustainable solutions.

Don't have the time or wherewithal to invest in such holistic longterm solutions? Then smear on bug repellent or buy so-called mosquito control gear to keep an outdoor area the size of a typical deck or patio mosquito-free are options. Consider Thermacell's E90 Rechargeable Mosquito Repellent which runs off a rechargeable battery and can keep bugs away from small outdoor spaces as long as the wind is minimal.

wing's history and found that the plane was originally built for Art Davis as a competition plane in February 1929. "In a matter of days before the Gardner Trophy Air Races in late May, Davis got approval for modifications to achieve an average speed of 140 mph to place third as he ran out of fuel," Moon said. The plane had numerous owners during the 1930s. Then in 1935, the plane was sold to Mike Murphy of Kokomo and was flown in the Linco Flying Aces squadron, performing and advertising for Ohio Oil Co. (Moon was born in Ohio), and who led 400 Waco gliders to start the D-Day invasion, she shared.

Sometimes, Moon flies bi-planes with a group of pilots out of Indy, and they do barrel rolls. "It's an adrenaline rush."

When I caught up with Moon last Friday morning, she had just landed a U.S. Army blue and yellow open-cockpit 1941 World War II Stearman two-seater bi-plane PT-17 with plane owner Noblesville pilot Larry Jacobi, a retired Noblesville teacher, co-owner of Noblesville airport and a pilot of 53 years.

She was proud to get her high-performance endorsement so she can fly her family plane. "I just got the endorsement from Larry," she said happily.

Moon did all of her training before that in a Champ, a taildragger, and has an endorsement to fly and getting stronger. She's a member of the Ninety-Nines international organization of Women Pilots nonprofit established in 1929 by female pilot Amelia Earhart, the group's first president, and 98 other charter members who were female pilots.

While she wasn't a Young Eagle, she loves the program. And she said more youth, and more females, have been interested in EAA in the past two years, in our community and around Central Indiana and the world. The EAA's AeroEducate program is bringing more interest. During the recent fly-in, youth in the program helped set up and tear down and were manning the tables.

Moon is a 2007 graduate of Hamilton Southeastern High School. Her husband, Jason, is an art teacher at Hazel Dell Elementary School in Noblesville. She showed me an air photo overlooking the school from when she flew over the school during Hazel Dell's Hawk Walk-athon was happening. Zooming in on the photo, you can see the kids watching her plane in the air.

The Moons' two sons, Vincent, 7, and Lincoln, 5, have been up in the plane with their mom and love it. But her husband hasn't been up yet. "Plane's a whole new world for him."

She said teaching humanities to her middle school classes comes nat-

night.)

Michael Kobrowski, the Westfield Washington Historical Society museum's curator and communications officer, pointed out that although Dismal Swamp was drained in 1880, land in that area still isn't completely solid.

He observed that when the overpass and exit/ entrance ramps at State Road 38 were being constructed as part of the process of making U.S. 31 a limited access highway, workers had a hard time finding solid ground and were forced to dig deeper than they'd expected.

After I wrote the column dealing with the U. S. Public Land Survey System (USPLSS,) I heard from my college friend, Barry Shevitz. Barry lives in Israel now, but he's from Indianapolis and is an experienced land surveyor.

In the early 1980s, while he was a Civil Engineering student, he worked part-time for the Shelby County Surveyor. The Surveyor had Barry's crew digging up that county's stone corner markers and painting them red. They then reburied the markers, driving nails into the asphalt on the surface of the roads to indicate the markers' locations.

Barry said since the nails were often destroyed by traffic, snow plows etc., and early field notes on the markers' locations weren't always trustworthy, the stones often had to be dug up again.

All that digging was due to a state law requiring county surveyors to locate a certain number of the original section corner markers in their county each year. The goal was to have the property lines of every section in the county verified within 20 years.

Gary Kent, the surveyor who provided the information for my earlier column, added that because the law failed to provide a funding mechanism for finding the markers and because surveying is an expensive operation, many counties could do nothing about this.

And why are surveys so expensive?

According to Gary, there are several reasons — good surveying equipment isn't cheap, a great deal of time and expense is involved in locating the reference corners needed to conduct a proper survey, and the demand for surveys exceeds the supply of surveyors who've been able to hire qualified help.

Moreover, surveying is a profession that requires a great deal of knowledge and training in a broad range of areas you might not expect — areas like writing computer applications, flying drones, understanding legal aspects of the work, and more.

(Gary also remarked that painting the markers red wasn't done everywhere. That may have just been a Shelby County practice.)

Notable Nineties Update: Mary Burns has added Peggy Hodges of Carmel to the list, and Claire Snyder and her friend Kathy (Miller) Mosbaugh added Kathy's mother, Pat Mosbaugh of the Walnut Grove area. Congratulations!
