Three Things You Should Know

1 The second round of Community Development Block Grants for 2024 are open for applications. Proposal submissions will be collected via the electronic Grants Management System. Instructions on how to submit proposals can be found at in.gov/ocra/cdbg. Several 2024 Action Plan changes will take effect starting this round. Round 2 proposals are due Oct. 18.

2 Our friends at DatingAdvice.com took a deep dive into the world of classic American cuisine and interviewed 3,000 men to find out which dishes resonate the most when it comes to matters of the heart. And to no surprise here, Indiana fared very well. Corn on the cob, chili, pork tenderloins, breaded catfish and sugar cream pie were tops in the Hoosier state. Nationally, New York cheesecake was No. 1.

3 Speaking of food, 'Porktober' returns for its fourth year. Diners can celebrate by visiting locally owned restaurants on the Tenderloin Lovers Trail. The trail can be found on the Indiana Culinary Trails Passport. Since 1908, the breaded pork tenderloin (BPT) has been Indiana's unofficial sandwich. To participate in 'Porktober', sign up for the Indiana Culinary Trails Passport at VisitIndiana.com/Cuisine. Each restaurant check-in earns points toward a variety of prizes including pie servers, tumblers, hats, sunglasses and more!

NHS Class of '65 Gathers to Honor Hometown Heroes

Members of Noblesville High School class of 1965 honor two classmates killed in Vietnam — Mike Lawhon and Jim Grant — during a Sept. 15 gathering on the Logan Street Bridge in downtown Noblesville.

When Stephen Craig told me about his Noblesville High School Class of 1965 gathering on the Logan Street Bridge to honor two classmates killed in Vietnam, I thought it would be a great time to share more about the Noblesville Hometown Heroes banners as well as similar banner projects throughout Hamilton County.

About 50 members of the class and spouses, including Stephen Craig and his wife, Moffett Craig, who, too, is a classmate, posed for a photo on the bridge on Sept. 15 honoring their late classmates, Mike Lawhon and Jim Grant. The class met on the downtown Noblesville bridge for the photo because Lawhon and Grant are both honored with banners located on the north side of the bridge, in the center.

Classmate the Rev. Jeff Wilhelm, an ordained Episcopal minister, gave a prayer. And after the photo, they adjourned to nearby Syd's Bar & Grill to visit. (In 2025, the class will celebrate its 60th class reunion.)

This was a special event because of the short duration these banners are expected to be hanging on Noblesville light posts, according to the classmates.

I haven't really heard too much about these patriotic Noblesville Hometown Heroes banners, only saw a social media post back in the spring about how Logan Street Signs & Banners' Deb Wade had spent three months creating the banners which were installed around Memorial Day.

So I asked her more about the banners, and she was eager to talk about the project.

She estimates that she created almost three dozen of the Noblesville Hometown Heroes banners. "We started with 24 and were able to add a few here and there when a pole became available," she said. "Whenever a pole is free, the street department contacts me to fill it up."

Signs & Banners, owned by her oldest brother, Jim Wafford, is paying for the banners.

Who came up with the banner project? Wade or Wafford?

"The original idea was mine, but he helped me find a way to expand it so we can keep it going," Wade said.

"The city is waiving the fee to use the posts," Wade said, "thanks to Aaron Head," the city's community engagement manager. "A couple (of veterans) that are up on the posts have donated toward our project."

Wade said, "We are not charging for these. It is an honor for us to do this."

More on Dillinger and Sheriff's Residence

PAULA DUNN
From Time to Thyme

Thanks to a couple of readers, I've got some details to add to past columns.

Sandy Lynch, the director of the Hamilton County Historical Society Museum, sent some photos of the Sheriff's Residence and Jail with — and without — the garage and tower.

Garage?

I'd completely forgotten there used to be a garage. (I'd also forgotten about the small parking area that once sat on the northwest corner of the courthouse square behind the garage and the jail.)

The garage was located on the east side of the jail. According to Sandy, it was added in the early 1950s and torn down in 1983 as part of a historic preservation project.

Sandy also sent photos of the tower that was added to the Sheriff's Residence in 1992. The new tower restored the building to the way it looked in 1876. (The original tower had been blown down during a storm in 1948.)

After the first John Dillinger column ran, I received an email from Bob McColgin, the son of Helen (Carey) McColgin, whose parents owned the Westfield Cafeteria where Dillinger was said to have eaten.

Bob included a photo of several members of the Carey family standing in front of the cafeteria and noted that his mother's job

You Asked About Hammer, Bubba . . .

TIM TIMMONS
Two Cents

A few weeks ago, I shared in this space that some of you have asked about my old pals, Honest Hoosier, John Hammer and Bubba Castiron . . . and why you haven't heard much from them of late.

So I foolishly said that if you wanted to catch up with the boys to let me know and I'd see what I could do.

Silly guy!

You responded in droves (not sure what exactly a drove is anyway, but you sure bombarded my email).

Shelly from Sheridan wrote and said that she really misses John Hammer.

"Mr. Timmons, In these times with everyone so divided I miss the Hammer. He seems to have more common sense and says what I'm usually thinking. Thank you for asking and yes I'd like to hear more from him."

Thanks, Shelly. And by the way, Mr. Timmons was my dad. I'm just Tim. John from New Richmond echoed her thoughts.

"Bring back John Hammer! He speaks the truth and it is in limited supply now."

You got that right about "limited supply," John.

We had two Garys reply – one from Noblesville and one from Crawfordsville. They have different emails, so I'm guessing these are two different Garys (either that, or he might have a hell of an interesting tale to tell). Both said they are looking forward to hearing what John Hammer thinks about the presidential election.

Betty from Cicero tried to be kind – and I appreciate that. "I like your what you call scribbles," she started out. "However, I just LOVE reading everything about John Hammer. He reminds me of my late husband. He's smart, opinionated, and not at all afraid to say what he thinks. We need more like him." I'll let John know, Betty. I'm sure he'll be honored by your comparison. When it comes to Bubba, several of you wanted to know where the Crawl-On-Inn is located. Truth to tell, I can get there, but it's hard to describe.

Let's just say that "out in the middle of nowhere" is a thriving metropolis compared to its location on a gravel road!

"I go by Bubba, too," Bubba from Lebanon wrote. "So I sympathize with Mr. Castiron. Pass along my number to him and tell him if he wants to start a support group for Bubbas who don't get any respect, I'm in."

I have a feeling Rodney Dangerfield's got nothing on this guy.

"Every time I read about Bubba, I think about Jeff Foxworth's Bubba J. I think they are both so funny. Yes bring him back please."

That came from Dave in Crawfordsville. Sorry Dave, I think you meant Jeff Dunham – but you are right – I see similarities in both Bubbas as well (and wonder if Lebanon's Bubba would agree?).

My favorite email of all came from Monica in Noblesville.

"I don't know if Bubba is a real person or a figment of your imagination. If the latter, I seriously wonder about your childhood and what sort of trauma you must've been through. And if Bubba is a real person, then that explains how Joe Biden won the election."

True that, Monica!

Oh, and I almost forgot. Several folks say they miss Honest Hoosier the most. Mark summed it up perhaps the best. "I don't have time to read all your "scribbles," but I miss the quick hits that Honest Hoosier provided."

There were others on all three, some perhaps not fit for the family newspaper we strive to be. But you get the gist. I'm not sure if I'm flattered by all the response or offended. But hey, we're here to give you what you asked for. So you can expect to hear from the boys in the coming weeks. Assuming I can track Bubba down!

MedTech Company Coming to Westfield Bringing Dozens of High-Paying Jobs

Portal Diabetes Inc., a medical technology company, announced plans to relocate their headquarters to Westfield from Southern California. As part of its relocation, the company is also announcing a name change from Physiologic Devices, Inc. and their technology called ThinPump to Portal Diabetes Inc. and the Portal Pump.

Founded in 2013, Portal is developing a fully automatic, implantable insulin pump to control glucose levels. Its Portal Pump technology will be the first fully automated insulin delivery system that can store up to 12 weeks of insulin through an artificial pancreas.

"We are thrilled that Portal has chosen to relocate their headquarters to Westfield," Westfield Mayor Scott Willis said. "They are on the cutting edge of transforming the lives of diabetics across the globe and will make a great corporate partner in our community. Their capital investment and high paying jobs align perfectly with my long-term vision of creating a high technology manufacturing center in Westfield with an emphasis in the biotechnology and healthcare space."

The company will employ up to 35 full-time employees with an average annual salary of $135,265. The company's employees will be relocating to Westfield by the end of October 2024.

Based on the company's plans, the Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC) committed an investment in Portal of up to $925,000 in the form of incentive-based tax credits.

"Having completed a national search of locations for Portal, we chose Westfield, Indiana as a thriving community with a favorable business environment and access to strong life science talent," shared CEO, Stacy Chambliss. "Adding its rich history in insulin manufacturing, we are glad to make Indiana our new home."

"Indiana's life sciences ecosystem continues to grow and prove that we offer the perfect environment for exploration, experimentation and innovation," said Ann Lathrop, Chief Strategy officer at the Indiana Economic Development Corporation. "Indiana has proven it's one of the nation's top locations for life science businesses of every kind. I'm thrilled to see Portal relocate to Indiana and I look forward to the impact they make on the state and its life sciences sector."

The company will lease 18,000 square feet of existing space located on Southpark Drive with a total capital investment of $4.07 million. Westfield City Council will be considering a personal property abatement, which was introduced at the September 23 council meeting.

Noblesville Man Found in Retention Pond

A 35-year-old Noblesville man was found in a retention pond last Friday.

Zachery R. Polson was pronounced dead at Riverview Health after police officers and firefighters pulled him from the pond in the area of Windwood Parkway and Hague Road.

According to Noblesville Police, both police and fire got a 911 call at 4:01 p.m. Friday of a man standing on top of the retention pond's water fountain. The caller stated that the man then jumped in the water and never resurfaced.

Officers and firefighters arrived on the scene a short time later and began searching. A diver from the fire department found Polson submerged near the fountain. Emergency personnel began resuscitation efforts and he was rushed to Riverview in critical condition. He was pronounced dead a short time later.

The cause of death will be determined by the Hamilton County Coroner's Office.

Ditslears Offer School Board Endorsements

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor, Noblesville is known for being a community who has a small town feel with big city amenities and aspirations. The small-town feel comes from authentic engagement with both leaders and neighbors. The current Noblesville School Board, Noblesville Teachers & Administrators, along with Students & Families are made up of people who work together, even when they might not agree politically. This has led to the success of working together to get things done respectfully and with integrity for the sake of our whole community.

Our school board, and the way it works collectively, is the envy of many communities in Indiana. There is no infighting, bickering or back-biting, in public or behind closed doors. This is because cooperation and respect for differences of opinion, along with the mission of Noblesville schools being priority number one.

"Noblesville Schools creates an inclusive, learner centered culture that develops future-ready skills through relevant experiences supported by strong relationships that celebrate diversity and promote equity among students, staff, parents and community."

We have witnessed the leadership of Crosser, Lambert and Richardson through their work in the community and their dedication to making Noblesville a place where students critically engage with learning and develop their potential, no matter their intellectual pursuit. They are visible in the community and are accessible.

From what we have read on each of the candidate's social media sources, listening to candidate forums, and knowing some of the candidates personally, It seems clear that voting for Crosser, Lambert and Richardson is the logical choice for continued success for Noblesville Schools.

We support integrity, respect for all diverse thought, empathy, the cultivation of trust, along with fiscal responsibility. But most of all we support educating students to think critically, engage in dialogue, listen and consider multiple perspectives, to use their voice, and value the humanity of others. That is why we are voting for Christi Crosser, Stephanie Lambert, and Bret Richardson for Noblesville School Board on November 5.

Her inspiration? Noblesville's Chuck Layton, a U.S. Army veteran who served in Korea as an Army Ranger and at the age of 22 found himself a Prisoner of War / Missing in Action with 36 other men. After 17 weeks, Sgt. Charles E. Layton, whose Hometown Heroes banner is also on the Logan Street Bridge, led a daring escape that ended his captivity, instilling a desire to do good for people on a daily basis, according to his November 2020 obituary. The experience haunted him for most of his adult life until he put his memories into a book called "Escaped with Honor."

Wade said, "I started with Chuck Layton as my inspiration as our best friend, and the fact that he was Jim's right hand man starting Logan Street Signs. He is on the Bridge of Flowers." She said, "As for choosing since I was limited on the first group, after talking with Jim, we decided to put two different people on each banner to get more honored. There are so many that deserve to be up there."

It's interesting to walk around downtown Noblesville and across Logan Street Bridge to look at all of the Noblesville Hometown Heroes banners.

"We chose several that have been a major part of our sign shop history and special customers over the years," she said. Wade contacted Hamilton County Sheriff's Department, Noblesville Police Department, Noblesville Fire Department and Noblesville American Legion for service members, living and deceased "and they happily helped us out."

Besides Layton, and Michael H. Lawhon and James M. "Jim" Grant, who both served in the U.S. Army in Vietnam, there are many other veterans honored with a Noblesville Hometown Heroes banner on the bridge. One of those veterans is Noblesville native Robert L. Roudebush, who served in the U.S. Army during World War II and served five terms as a U.S. Representative from Indiana 1961-71. The Richard L. Roudebush Veterans Administration Medical Center in Indianapolis was named in his honor.

Other Noblesville Hometown Heroes banners on the bridge include: Deputy Joshua Lollar, who served in the U.S. Army in Iraq and Afghanistan; Deputy Adam Leckrone, who served in the U.S. Marines; and First Lt. Alan J. Bardach, who served in the U.S. Army in Vietnam. There is also U.S. Army veteran Israel Menchaca Jr., who served in Vietnam.

Other poles besides on the bridge feature Noblesville Hometown Heroes, U.S. Army Chief Warrant Officer 2 James Jessee, who served in Vietnam; U.S. Army Specialist Eric Behrends, who served in Operation Iraqi Freedom; U.S. Army Specialist William Prater, who served in Vietnam; and U.S. Army Specialist Doug Robinson (Moffett Craig's brother who graduated in the NHS class of 1966), who served in Vietnam; U.S. Army Private First Class Joe Whitmoyer, who served in Vietnam; U.S. Army Specialist Greg France, who served in Vietnam; U.S. Coast Guard's Jack Clark; U.S. Marine Corp.'s Lt. Col. Douglas Herrington; U.S. Air Force's Eric Berger, a firefighter and staff sergeant; Jeremy Hopkins, who served in the U.S. Army. There are many more banners. I encourage people in the community to take a walk downtown to see all of the banners.

How proud is Wade of their project? "In the back of my mind, I know Chuck is thrilled," she said. "Jim is all about honoring veterans, and this puts a smile on both of our faces."

Are these banners expected to be on display for a while? "I do not know how long they will be there, hopefully for a long time, perhaps until another function needs to take the space," Wade said. "Should be up at least through Veteran's Day."

Hopefully this banner project will run Memorial Day through Veteran's Day every year.

Wade said if anyone wants to submit a picture, name, rank and service, "we hope to continue this for a long time, though we may need to swap banners out as we are limited on poles." Submissions for a wait list may be emailed to deb@loganstreetsigns.com.

Noblesville isn't the only community honoring their veterans on banners.

In Cicero, Hometown Hero banners are funded by donations and honor those who have served in the U.S. Armed Forces.

In 2023, members of the Sheridan Historical Society's Veterans' Banner Committee collected photos and information about more than 130 local veterans to create rotating banners for placement on 20 double-sided Main Street lamp poles. The project began as an idea from Vance Wallace, based on banners in Cicero and Tipton downtown areas.

Fishers is also doing the same with its special light pole banner program, offering the community the opportunity to request banners dedicated to honoring veterans and active-duty service members. Banners are displayed around the Nickel Plate District with request forms available at fishersin.gov.com. There's no cost to participate. The City covers all expenses related to the creation and display of these banners. This is the city's way of saying 'thank you' to those who have given so much.

Besides banners, one nearby community is honoring Hometown Heroes this week in another way. The Builders Association of Greater Indianapolis (BAGI) Home-A-Rama's Hometown Heroes Day, will honor heroes and thank them for their service to their communities and country during the 2024 Hometown Heroes Day on Thursday, and will include $5 off the $25 admission tickets for military veterans, active military members, first responders, health care workers and teachers to the 2024 Home-A-Rama in the private, lakeside community, Promontory of Zionsville, near Westfield. The day will feature a separate check-in area for heroes, and signs honoring their service.

Hometown heroes are honored in many ways throughout Hamilton County, including Westfield's Hometown Hero Program that covers lawn care services and snow removal for public safety personnel and active service military members who qualify.

In Carmel, a Mayor's Advisory Commission was established by Carmel Mayor Sue Finkam to address the needs of veterans and military families in Carmel.

Also, active military and veterans are honored at free Memorial Day and Veterans Day programs throughout Hamilton County in partnership with local veterans organizations. To learn more about Hamilton County Veterans Services, call (317) 776-9610 or visit www.hamiltoncounty.in.gov/378/Veteran-Services

Final 96th Street Sculpture Complete

The fourth and final 96th Street corridor "Classic Cars of Indiana"-themed sculpture by local artist Arlon Bayliss, went in at the roundabout at 96th Street and Gray Road.

"We are excited to share final piece of public art in the Classic Cars sculpture series along the 96th Street corridor," said Chief Infrastructure Officer Jeremy Kashman. "It's an impressive piece that's been designed and fabricated locally and adds to the uniqueness of the city."

"Stutz" joins three other sculptures by Bayliss, installed at the roundabouts on 96th Street at Priority Way, Delegates Row and Hazel Dell Parkway. Commission in late 2021, the four sculptures feature artistic interpretations of the classic cars

'Stutz' joins three other sculptures at the roundabouts on 96th Street at Priority Way, Delegates Row and Hazel Dell Parkway.

Marmon, Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg, Studebaker and Stutz - each of which were designed and built in Indiana during the first half of the 20th century when America first began to fall in love with automobiles.

Inspired by the Stutz 'Ra' Art Deco hood ornament, "Stutz", when finally placed on its five-foot-high Indiana limestone base, will stand at 18-foot-high. Bayliss' design incorporates dozens of sheets of steel, fabricated by Bomar Industries, in vertical slices with space between each one creating an ethereal light-permeable abstract form. At night, the sculpture will be illuminated from within using the artist's signature-colored dichroic-filtered light sources.

was to roll pie dough each morning before heading to school. (I especially liked the sign in the photo: "32 MILES TO NEXT TOWN, EAT HERE.")

Bob said his memory of his mother's account of "Dillinger's" visit differs a little from what I wrote.

According to him, she didn't actually see the man believed to be Dillinger, but "she remembered the story that when John and his men walked into the cafeteria, the only commotion was that the barber, Doc Ross, swallowed an ice cube and choked."

(In point of fact, the "men" were one man and two women.)

About the body in a hearse parked outside the cafeteria – Mrs. McColgin and her sisters DID get a look at the casket inside the hearse while the driver was eating, but Bob said his mother was never sure who was in the casket.

We know now that body was most likely Dillinger gang member Harry Pierpont.

(By the way, Pierpont was no stranger to Hamilton County. In 1924 he was part of a gang that attempted to rob the Citizens State Bank in downtown Noblesville. A few months later he was caught and sent to the Indiana Reformatory at Pendleton, which is where he met Dillinger.)

You can't fault Mrs. McColgin and her father, Lowell Carey, for believing Dillinger had eaten at their cafeteria. Remember, people in the 1930s had no television, no internet and no smartphones. All they had to go on to identify the notorious bank robber were newspaper photos and maybe an occasional newsreel at a movie theater. Most people never saw how he moved, or heard his voice.

While I can't say with 100 percent certainty Dillinger NEVER ate at the Westfield Cafeteria, it's extremely unlikely. From 1924 to 1933 he was serving time for the attempted robbery of a Mooresville grocery. Following his release in May, 1933, he was only known to have been in this area once or twice.

It's well established that he visited his family in Mooresville April 5-8, 1934. (He was staying there the weekend he made the trip to Ohio that ended with the Hamilton County car crash.)

Additionally, the Indianapolis Times and another source indicate that he made a "fleeting" visit to Indianapolis to drop money off for his family on May 10, 1934. I haven't been able to confirm that to my satisfaction, though.

Notable Nineties Update: I get to add a name to the list this week – Sarah Cloud of Noblesville. Sarah's been a family friend for many years. Congratulations, Sarah!

Sen. Walker Shares Update

While suicide prevention should be addressed every day, we highlight the importance of helping those in need each September during National Suicide Prevention Month.

Sept. 23 starts the beginning of College Application Week, which is part of Indiana's annual College GO! initiative that takes place each August through November. Several colleges and universities in Indiana will waive their application fee for a week or longer to encourage students to apply without the financial burden.

Sadly, here in Indiana, suicide is the 11th-leading cause of death overall and the second-leading cause of death for 10-34 year olds.

To help push back against this troubling trend, in recent years, I have supported measures to:

- Build a better mental-health care system in Indiana;
- Provide $100 million to expand the number of behavioral health clinics in the state;
- Strengthen community-based mental health programs.

If you or someone you know is experiencing suicidal thoughts, mental health or substance use crisis, or any other kind of emotional distress, help is just a phone call or text away at 988. The Lifeline is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.
