Three Things You Should Know

1 Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita filed a lawsuit alleging that Mylan and Pfizer have conspired to increase EpiPen's price by more than 600 percent in order to continue to profit from EpiPen prescriptions and prevent other similar products from coming to market and being available to consumers. EpiPens are potentially life-saving devices used to inject adrenaline into patients to combat severe allergic reactions. The complaint alleges the companies and their subsidiaries have violated the Indiana Deceptive Consumer Sales Act, the Indiana Antitrust Act and the Medicaid False Claims Act by continually increasing the price of EpiPens and providing payments to pharmacy benefit managers to exclude competition. The lawsuit also asserts the companies have paid doctors to endorse their decision to launch a 2-pak of the EpiPen and claim it is medically necessary - allowing the companies to cease selling individual EpiPens.

2 A recent survey of 3,000 drivers by Gunther VW Daytona identified America's most feared winter roads - and five were in Indiana. The worst in the U.S.? Alaska Rte. 2. And Hoosier highways that hit the ranking included, Interstate 74 at 29th, I-69 at 45th, I-80 / 90 112th, I-70 at 140th and I-65 at 151. To stay safe, they recommend things like slowing down, don't tailgate, brake gently and early, accelerate gradually, steer smoothly and other common sense approaches.

3 Our friends at deye.com shared a study of 30 years of weather data that ID'd each state's gloomiest day of the year . . . and in Indiana it turned out to be Jan. 30. Key factors like temperature and cloud cover were used to make the determination. And while winter enthusiasts may embrace the season, Jan. 30 is likely to be a day where most Hoosiers would rather stay indoors. With a historical track record of icy temperatures, thick cloud cover, and the general sluggishness of midwinter, it's the perfect storm for seasonal blues.

From Serve to Explore: Heights' Reaching New Heights Program Inspires Students

All students at Hamilton Heights High School had the opportunity to participate in specialty experiences to serve and explore career interests as part of the Reaching New Heights program. The goal of the program is to provide educational experiences designed to help each student learn and master academic content, form meaningful relationships, and develop the skills, aptitudes, and characteristics important to successfully maneuver through life's challenges as a productive member of their community and a global society.

Hamilton Heights High School students at all grade levels recently took advantage of a variety of career exploration activities to learn more about specialty pathways, jobs, and careers. These activities revolve around the district's new Reaching New Heights program to better prepare students for college and careers.

The freshman class spent their Student Resource Time engaged in a community service activity with staff from the Noblesville-based International Disaster Emergency Service. Together they packed some 22,000 meals in about an hour! IDES-packaged meals bring help and hope to those in need around the world.

The sophomore class took a road trip to the John Hinds Career Center in Elwood. Here they had the opportunity to explore Career and Technical Education offerings, learn more about Heights' CTE offering through the Center, and meet professionals in the trades as they look to align their skills and interests into a pathway to an exciting and dynamic career.

Hamilton County and the Polio Epidemic

PAULA DUNN From Time to Thyme

There's been so much talk lately about the possibility polio vaccination requirements could be watered down, or done away with altogether, this seemed like a good time to examine the impact polio had on Hamilton County before vaccines were available.

If you're not entirely sure what polio is - after all, it hasn't existed in the Western Hemisphere since the 1990s - here's a little background . . .

Polio, or more properly poliomyelitis, is a VERY contagious disease caused by a virus. It attacks the nervous system and can paralyze a person within hours of being infected. Although its victims are usually children (it was originally called "infantile paralysis,") anyone of any age who hasn't been vaccinated can catch it.

Only a small percentage of polio victims die, but those who survive often suffer muscle weakness and other complications the rest of their lives.

The most important thing to know about polio is that THERE IS NO CURE. The only way to keep from contracting polio is to be vaccinated.

Actor Alan Alda, musician and songwriter Joni Mitchell, Olympic athlete Wilma Rudolph and politician Mitch McConnell are just a few of the famous polio survivors.

The disease's most prominent victim, however, was President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Roosevelt founded the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which became the organization we know today as the March of Dimes.

Although polio has been around for hundreds, if not thousands, of years, it didn't start reaching epidemic levels until the 20th century.

I found a few cases of "infantile paralysis" reported in local newspapers during the first decades of that century, but the worst years were 1949-1955. Polio-related articles frequently appeared on the front page of the Noblesville Daily Ledger during that period.

In 1949 Hamilton County had nearly 20 cases and one or two deaths. That may not sound like much, but the county's population in 1950 was less than 29,000, so most people were probably either personally acquainted with a polio victim, or knew OF them or their family.

Among the local victims of the outbreak were three Carmel High School students, Dora (Owen) Wainwright, Rosalyn (Shoemaker) Stuckey and Alyce (Myers) DeBlase.

The three girls were hospitalized for weeks and two of them had to be placed in an iron lung. They all survived, but were left with varying degrees of

Harper Valley PTA, or U.S. Senate? Hard to Tell Sometimes

TIM TIMMONS
Two Cents

Not too long ago, I shared a few parodies of songs, ala MAD Magazine from back when I was a kid (and back when it didn't cost around $12 for one issue!).

Several of you were kind enough to say you enjoyed that – and are about to learn something my bride of 40+ years knows . . . don't encourage me.

With that as the background, did you watch any of the Senate confirmation hearings with former Fox TV guy Pete Hegseth, Trump's nominee for Secretary of Defense? If you did not, consider yourself lucky. I did and that's a couple hours of my life I'll never get back.

Predictably, Democrats were on the attack and Republicans, for the most part, stood behind Hegseth. To be sure, there was a lot of mud slinging, but part of the objection to Hegseth is that he's not a general, not a defense industry executive, not a corporate hotshot. He's just a guy who served in Afghanistan and Iraq (by the way, he was awarded two Bronze Stars). Although he graduated from college and the ROTC program, he doesn't fit the mold of Defense Secretary types.

That point, being a big objection, is particularly frustrating – at least to me. Can anyone argue that our government is broken? If we keep on doing the same thing we always do, nothing with a capital N.O.T.H.I.N.G. will change. Not a thing.

So count me as a fan of these off-the-wall tactics (the Department of Government Efficiency and putting people in Cabinet seats who don't fit the typical profile). I don't know if they'll work, but I surely know what we've been doing since pretty much the Eisenhower administration isn't.

I share all that to preface the following – with sincere and heartfelt apologies to writer Tom T. Hall and singer Jeannie C. Riley and their 1968 hit, Harper Valley PTA – here's what they might've come up with if that song were released today.

I wanna tell you all a story about an ex-GI turned TV guy

Who was asked by Trump to come back for our troops and make them great again

Well, ol' Pete stood up to salute and didn't even ask the way

He said thank you sir I'll get to work for the military U.S.A.

Well, the Dems said Ol Pete my friend you're dreaming way too big

It's reported you've been drinkin' and a-runnin' round the bars and goin' wild

And we don't believe you oughta be a-leadin' up our fightin' troops this way

And this was echoed by Dems all over the U.S.A.

Well it happened that the Senate was gonna meet that very afternoon

And they were sure surprised when Pete was cheered walking into that room

As he sat down for the grilling I can still see the looks he got of hate

And as he sat down at the table. I can still recall the words they had to say

They said We'd like to send you far away from the U.S.A.

Senator Tim Kaine piped up and called our guy a big ol cheat

And Mazie Hirono sure seemed real nasty when he wasn't phased

And Jack Reed couldn't wait to yell

at the top of his lungs

Elizabeth Warren jumped in and brought the meeting completely down.

Drinkin' and cheatin' were the main points again and again

But the Dems forgot the rule about finger pointing and hiding their sin

And they had the nerve to tell us they think that as a leader he's not fit

Well this is just a den of snakes and you're all U.S. Senate hypocrites!

No, I wouldn't put you on because it really did It happened just this way paralysis. The most seriously affected, Alyce Myers, spent the rest of her life in a wheelchair.

That was also the fate of Marjorie Passwater, Indiana's "Polio Mother of the Year" for 1958.

The wife of Hamilton County Deputy Sheriff (and later Sheriff) Marcus Passwater, Jr., Mrs. Passwater caught polio in 1952, as did one of her sons. His case was mild, but she nearly died and for the last 20 years of her life she was wheelchair-bound.

In 1951, volunteers went door-to-door in Noblesville, collecting funds to fight the dreaded disease during the county's first Mothers March on Polio. Two years later, the March expanded into a county-wide effort that continued annually each January for over a decade.

The tide finally began to turn when the Salk vaccine was made available in 1955, followed by Sabin's oral vaccine in 1961. The Salk vaccine had its naysayers even back then, but the results were undeniable.

In 1955, 1,413 first and second grade students from all over Hamilton County received the Salk vaccine and the number of polio cases in the county began to drop.

By the 1960s, the success of the vaccines allowed the March of Dimes to shift its focus from fighting polio to preventing birth defects and infant mortality.

Although polio has been eliminated from most of the world, it still exists in a couple of areas. As long as that's true, it could stage a comeback.

Just some food for thought.

"Learning about Indiana's government early on can leave a huge impact, especially when students have a front row seat to the lawmaking process," said State Rep. Chris Jeter (R-Fishers). "I would love to have the opportunity to meet young Hoosiers from our district and show them how their state government works." "Civics is such an important topic to a student's education, and this is a great way to get an inside view of state government," said State Rep. Danny Lopez (R-Carmel). "I am excited to meet young Hoosiers at the Statehouse and show them how laws are made in Indiana."

State Rep. Alaina Shonkwiler (R-Noblesville) said interested students will have the opportunity to page on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays during the legislative session and will receive an excused absence from school. Large groups can participate on Wednesdays only. To schedule a group, contact the page program director at 317-232-9410 or page program@iga.in.gov

"At the Statehouse, students will be able to meet lawmakers and staff while learning more about Indiana's government," Shonkwiler said. "This is a unique educational experience, and I encourage any interested students to apply."

"This is a tremendous opportunity for young Hoosiers with an interest in the state legislature," said State Rep. Hunter Smith (R-Zionsville). "These slots fill up fast, so do not wait to apply and experience session firsthand." Students are responsible for their own lunch and transportation to and from the Statehouse in Indianapolis.
