County Gets Top Award In Indiana

The Hamilton County Soil and Water Conservation District has been honored with the Governor's Award for Environmental Excellence, the highest environmental award in the State of Indiana.

The award recognizes the Hamilton County Invasives Partnership, a collaborative initiative led by HCSWCD to combat the spread of invasive species and restore healthy ecosystems across the county. HIP brings together local government agencies, nonprofit organizations, landowners, and community volunteers to address one of Indiana's most pressing conservation challenges: the threat invasive plants pose to native habitats, wildlife, and landscapes.

The award was presented at the 28th Annual Partners for Sustainability Conference on Sept. 17. Accepting the award on behalf of Hamilton County were Claire Lane, Urban Conservationist with HCSWCD and HIP Coordinator, and Mark Heirbrandt, Hamilton County Commissioner.

Has It Really Been That Long?

Paula Dunn
From Time to Thyme

This is an anniversary for me. Believe it or not, as of this week I've been writing this column for 15 years.

Fifteen years!

Even as I type those words, the reality of it is having trouble sinking in. I wasn't sure I'd last six months, let alone 15 years.

As I mentioned in one of my earliest efforts, initially I was terrified by the prospect of doing a weekly column. I kept thinking about my days in Mr. Morrison's art class at Noblesville High School.

Mr. M. was great. He ran a really loose classroom.

We were free to do pretty much whatever we wanted — painting, stained glass, pottery . . . Anything considered artistic was fine with him.

That worked well for some people, but I spent way too much time sitting around, trying to figure out what to do.

When it was suggested that I write a weekly column, I started having flashbacks to Mr. M.'s class. I was afraid the day would eventually arrive when I couldn't come up with a topic. I even set aside a column in case that ever happened.

That column is still sitting in my email, unused. Occasionally, I've been tempted to dust it off and run it (updated by a few tweaks,) but I guess I'm superstitious. It's become my good luck charm. As long as it's there, I feel like I have a safety net.

What finally convinced me to say "yes" to doing the column was the opportunity to accurately present Hamilton County history.

When I was in school, we barely learned Indiana history, let alone anything about our county. I doubt that's changed much, which is a shame. Hamilton County has a particularly rich past and people who live here should know more about it.

I've been especially focused on digging up little nuggets of information

■ THREE THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW

1. What are some of our favorite home-grown goods? Turns out that Orville Redenbacher's Popcorn is Indiana's Most Loved Homegrown Brand, A Survey from our friends at MarketBeat.com, a leading financial media company, finds local brands St. Elmo Steak House Shrimp Cocktail Sauce, Vera Bradley, Red Gold Tomatoes and Clabber Girl Baking Powder are also included. Surveying 3,015 respondents MarketBeat asked Hoosiers to name the products that make them beam with state pride. Orville Redenbacher's Popcorn (Valparaiso) came in first. St. Elmo's (Indy) Shrimp Cocktail Sauce was next and followed by Vera Bradley out of Ft. Wayne, Red Gold Tomatoes from Elwood and Clabber Girl in Terre Haute.

2. While we're looking around the great Hoosier state, three Indiana Cemeteries were found to be among America's Most Beautiful Hidden Gems. A poll of 3,007 respondents by Choice Mutual, an insurance agency specializing in final expense life insurance, found that Highland Lawn Cemetery in Terre Haute), Beech Grove Cemetery in Muncie, and of course, Crown Hill in Indianapolis made the national list. The top three in the country? Mount Hope Cemetery in Rochester, New York; Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, Concord, Mass.; and Holualoa Japanese Cemetery, Holualoa, Big Island, Hawaii.

3. And sticking with our Hoosier theme today, the Indiana Department of Natural Resources invites you to celebrate the state's public lands and waters this weekend with events happening across the state. National Public Lands Day is Saturday, the nation's largest single day of volunteerism on public lands. It's also National Hunting and Fishing Day and the last Free Fishing Day of the year. For hunters, squirrel, dove, and youth deer seasons are open and are great options for connecting with the outdoors. And on Sunday, Indiana State Parks, State Forests and State Recreation Areas will offer free admission where entrance fees are normally charged. The entire weekend serves as a reminder that public lands are places for outdoor recreation, conservation, and making memories with families and friends. Information about how to be a DNR volunteer is at on.IN.gov/dnrvolunteer.

OBITUARY

Treva B. Marcum-Rubsam

November 7, 1953 - September 17, 2025

Treva B. Myerholtz Marcum-Rubsam, 71, of Clayton, Indiana, passed peacefully from this life on Wednesday, September 17, 2025 at 11:09 p.m. in the comfort of her home, surrounded by her loving family. She departed with unwavering faith, assured in the promise of eternal life, and is now in the presence of her Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

Treva was born on November 7, 1953, in Port Clinton, Ohio, to Emil George Myerholtz and Beatrice Mary Leutz. She enjoyed growing up on her parents' farm in Rocky Ridge, Ohio, and especially loved ice skating on the frozen stone quarry near their home. She was a 1971 graduate of Oak Harbor High School in Oak Harbor, Ohio, and Penta County Vocational High School in Perrysburg, Ohio.

On October 9, 1971, she married Roger Donald Marcum in Oak Harbor, Ohio. Although the marriage later ended, it was blessed with four children: Kirk Alan, Nicole Rae, Tiffany Jo, and Karl Ryan. On September 24, 2005, Treva married Daniel Paul Rubsam in Noblesville, Indiana. She was a devoted, loving, and supportive wife until his passing in 2015.

Treva worked as a receptionist for decades at several central Indiana automotive dealerships and most recently spent nine years at Stoops Freightliner, where she truly loved her work. She was admired for her warmth, her kindness toward others, and her ability to brighten the day of those around her.

Faith and family were the heart of who Treva was. She was an active member of Plainfield United Methodist Church and lived her life with unwavering faith, trusting God through every season. She was also an extraordinary mother who lovingly raised four children as a single parent, sacrificing daily for their well-being. The love she carried for her family was immense and immeasurable in words yet deeply felt by all who knew her.

Her special touches brought joy to others. She delighted in sending greeting cards adorned with the newest postage stamps, often tucking inside a joke, word search, or a sprinkle of confetti. She will also be remembered for her love of the color purple, snow, nature, fireworks, and evenings around the glow of a fire. A proud Buckeye, she cheered for The Ohio State University, enjoyed Cedar Point amusement park, and laughed easily over silly jokes. She enjoyed summer fairs, especially tractor pulls, demolition derbies, and horse events, and throughout her life captured life's moments through photography, as cherished memories. She delighted in the simple tradition of playing Uno with her family, a pastime that never failed to fill the room with laughter. Treva lived with a heart for others, faithfully donating blood and joyfully caring for children at home and church, nurturing countless little ones through the years.

Left to treasure her memory are her loving children: Kirk (Shelley) Marcum, Nicole (Ched) Mobley, Tiffany (John) Shorb, and Karl (Stephanie) Marcum; along with her beloved "Terrific Ten" grandchildren: Tyler Alan and Riley Renee Marcum; Joel Branson and Seth Jayson Mobley; Oren August and Abner Otis Shorb; and Zachary Ryan, Kirstyn Elizabeth, Brayden Xavier, and Layne Alexander Marcum. Treva was "peacock proud" of them all.

She was preceded in death by her parents and her four older half-siblings: Marvin Myerholtz, Dorothy Jensen, Glenn Myerholtz, and Velma Kaiser Velliquette.

Visitation will be held on Friday September 26, 2025 from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Hall-Baker Funeral Home, 339 E Main St, Plainfield, IN 46168. Funeral services will follow on Saturday September 27 at 1 p.m. with visitation from 11 a.m. until services at Plainfield United Methodist Church, 600 Simmons St, Plainfield, IN, with burial at Clayton Cemetery in Clayton, Indiana.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the Noblesville First United Methodist Church Pastor's Discretionary Fund (please specify support for an individual or family in need), the Plainfield United Methodist Church Family Assistance Fund, the Versiti Blood Center of Indiana, or to an organization of the donor's choice.

Branna: Be-Hold the Pickles!

Branna (McCarty) Shores
Columnist

Love'em or hate'em, pickles have a pertinent place in America and beyond. The stats state that the average American packs away 8.5 pounds of pickles a year and Midwesterners are driving the trend. It's time to realize the relevance of this requisite relish!

The prevalence of the pickle dates back many decades, even centuries. Cleopatra consumed them to boost her beauty regiment. Julius Caesar ensured his soldiers ate them to maintain strength and endurance. History credits Christopher Columbus for bringing the preservative practice of pickling to the New World where it remains to reign as a cult-classic, especially with Gen Z. Instacart has officially dubbed these days a "brine boom." To define this Kosher concoction as simply a sumptuous snack is simply absurd!

As if its tempting taste wasn't enough, consider the curative powers of this prime produce. From halting a hangover to beauty-producing properties, pickles have also even been known as a popular predictor for pregnancy! One old wives' tale says a hankering for sour, salty foods during pregnancy points toward a bouncing baby boy, while sweet and fruity cravings supposedly will grace you with a girl. Pickles also pack a punch for managing muscle cramps, boosting blood sugar control, and excels in antioxidant properties. Have I made my point in the power of pickles?

Let's turn now to preferences of the proverbial palette. I admit that pickles have a personal place both in my past and present. I cherish the childhood memories of those joyous jars of Aunt Gladys' delectable home-grown dills. To this day, I'm pretty particular when it comes to my pick of the pickle. Vlasic may be a classic, but I cater more to the crunch of a Claussen.

Corporations are clamoring to favor the flavor of foods toward the preference of pickle-lovers everywhere. In July 2025, in honor of National Pickle Month, Sonic boasted the Big Dill Double and the Picklerita Slushie. Popeye's has its own pickle lineup and Lay's Dill Pickle Potato Chips remain a runaway favorite. And you'd be hard-pressed to pass up fried pickles as a main appetizer on any merchant's menu.

Even the world of sports has parlayed into a passion for Pickleball, the latest, greatest craze for young and old alike. In fact, this playful pastime is so popular, you may find yourself in a pickle in pursuing an open court.

Yes, the coiffured cucumber is the garden's most prolific produce, second only to zucchini squash. More than just a gourmet gherkin that garnishes the table, the preponderance for this classic cornichon can't be denied. One might even proclaim the mighty pickle has earned its due DILL-igence!

Bubba Takes Timmons on Long Bus Ride

Tim Timmons
Columnist

It had been a while since I had heard from Bubba Castiron, my “friend” who is about three plates, four forks, two spoons and a couple of glasses away from having a full set of dishes.

No idea why he was on my mind – maybe I just didn’t have enough to do – but when the phone rang I looked at it for a long second. Couldn’t be, could it?

“Yes, sirree, I’m calling you today with a special offer-”

I’ll be danged. “Save it, Bubba. I know it’s you.”

“Dang, Timmons. You always get me. How do you do it?”

“I don’t know Bubba, just lucky I guess. But this time, I was actually-”

“Hey Timmons,” Bubba cut in, showing about as much consideration as you would expect from a man who thinks manners has something to do with men who have a speech impediment. “Did ya hear about the problem theys having with that one school bus?”

“No, I guess I haven’t Bubba. What school bus?”

“Well, the way I hear it they got one route that is just impossible to fill. So the head bossman-”

“The superintendent?”

“That’s what I said. Try to keep up Timmons. The head bossman decided he’d get creative and decorate one bus up with Sesame Street characters. And then, to make it even better, he changed the route so it’d only have to go to a few houses. And then, they ran a big ad in your paper saying they needed one driver and they were paying top U.S. American dollars.

“Well sir, that got them a bunch of appliques-”

“Applicants?”

“Huh?”

“Never mind.”

“Anywho, one of the folks who applied was this guy named Bob who told the bossman there weren’t no need to look further cause he was the right man for the right job. Ol’ Bob said he could drive anything, anywhere, anytime. So they hired him.

“Just like that?”

“I don’t know Timmons. You telling this story or me?”

“Sorry.”

“So they give him the route and Ol’ Bob’s thinking he got hisself the easiest job in the world. Cause theys paying him a pretty penny and all he has to do is make three stops. Can you imagine! So on that first day, Ol’ Bob climbs aboard the bus all painted up with Sesame Street stuff and heads to his first stop. And when he gets there there’s two of the largest girls he’s ever seen. I mean they are absolutely huge. And they are identical twins. Ol’ Bob pulls up opens the door and says ‘welcome girls. I’m Bob and I’m your new bus driver.’

“As they climb on, they are so big the bus creaks a bit and kind of leeeeeeans over a little.

‘I’m Patty,’ the first one says. ‘And this is my sister Patty and we are power lifters on the school weightlifting team Bob. Glad to meet you.’

“They sit down and Ol’ Bob heads on down the road to his second stop.”

I had no clue where Bubba was going with this.

“So he gets to his second stop and there’s this young feller. Ol’ Bob opens the door and says ‘welcome. I’m Bob and I’m your new bus driver.’

“The little feller climbs up and says ‘Hiya Bob. I’m Ross, but all my friends call me Special Ross and I like that so you can call me Special Ross, too.’

‘Good to meet you Special Ross, come on in and have a seat.’

“Ross walks on back, says hi to both Pattys and Bob takes off. When he gets to the third and last stop there’s another young guy waiting. Ol’ Bob pulls up opens the door and says ‘welcome. I’m Bob and I’m your new bus driver.’ The kid gets on board and says ‘My name is Lester G.’ He doesn’t say anything else and before Ol’ Bob can say a word, Lester G gets in the seat right behind Ol’ Bob. Figuring the kid doesn’t want to talk, and having all his stops taken care of, Ol’ Bob heads toward school.

“But he doesn’t get more than a mile or two and smells this awful stench. He looks around and there’s Lester G with his shoes and socks off picking at his feet. Well, Ol’ Bob doesn’t want to get the year off to a bad start, so he doesn’t say anything, but the further he goes the worse the smell gets. Not only that, but both Pattys are sitting on one side of the bus and every time Ol’ Bob goes around a corner, he’s sure the bus is going to tip over. And before they get to school, Ross starts singing a song about being Special Ross – except he can’t sing. He’s way off key and singing at the top of his lungs.

“Well Timmons, between worrying about the bus tipping, hearing that din from Ross and the awful smell coming from Lester – not to mention the whole bus being painted like that – well, Ol’ Bob decided this wasn’t the job for him. So he dropped the kids off and headed straight over to the head bossman’s office and turned in his key.

‘But I thought you said you could drive anything, anytime, anywhere,’ the bossman said. ‘I did,’ Ol’ Bob answered. ‘But you didn’t tell me I’d be driving two all beef Pattys, Special Ross, Lester G picking bunions on a Sesame Street bus!’ ”

And with that Bubba let out a howl and yelled “I got you, Timmons! Admit it, I got you!”

Why do I do this? Why do I listen? Maybe I ought to rethink things? I hear they’re looking for a bus driver.

Two cents, which is about how much Timmons said his columns are worth, appears periodically in The Times. Timmons is the chief executive officer of Sagamore News Media, the company that owns The Noblesville Times. He is also a proud Noblesville High School graduate and can be contacted at timmons@thetimes24-7.com.

Street, Noblesville, Indiana. The Petition for adoption alleges that the consent to adoption of EDWARD MUTSCHLER is not required because he has failed to have a meaningful relationship with or provide support for the child for a period in excess of one year, abandoned and deserted the child in excess of six months, failed to have significant communication with the child in excess of one year, failed to provide care and support as required by law in excess of one year, is an unfit parent and/or his consent is irrevocably implied by law.

If EDWARD MUTSCHLER seeks to contest the adoption of the child, EDWARD MUTSCHLER must file a motion to contest the adoption in accordance with IC 31-19-10-1 in the above-named court not later than fifteen (15) days after the date of service of this notice.

If EDWARD MUTSCHLER does not file a motion to contest the adoption within fifteen (15) days after the last notice of the action is published the above-named court will hear and determine the petition for adoption. The consent to adoption of EDWARD MUTSCHLER will be irrevocably implied and EDWARD MUTSCHLER will lose the right to contest either the adoption or the validity of EDWARD MUTSCHLER's implied consent to the adoption.

No statement made to EDWARD MUTSCHLER relieves EDWARD MUTSCHLER of EDWARD MUTSCHLER's obligations under this notice.

This notice complies with IC 31-19-4.5-3 but does not exhaustively set forth a person's legal obligations under the Indiana adoption statutes. A person being served with this notice should consult the Indiana adoption statutes.

Noblesville Creates Announces New Hub on Logan Street

Noblesville Creates is excited to announce the opening of its newest space, Noblesville Creates on Logan Street, located at 872 Logan Street in the heart of downtown Noblesville. The 1,500-square-foot second-floor space, once a photography studio, will now serve as a dynamic, multi-use creative hub for artists and entrepreneurs.

for artists and creative businesses," said Aili McGill, the Executive Director of Noblesville Creates. "We're thrilled to welcome three incredibly talented tenants who represent a diverse range of creative disciplines."

The new location will house three resident creatives:

- Michael Martin White, a Noblesville-based photographer and founder of Stop Bath Studio, will use his studio to create, exhibit, and share the craft of photography.

"Being part of Noblesville Creates on Logan Street is more than simply having a studio space," White said.

"Stop Bath Studio will be a place where I can create and exhibit my work while also sharing the history and tools of photography with others. It will serve as a gathering place for community events like Old Town Light, photography workshops and exhibits, and will host shows for other artists working in any medium. Through curated vintage cameras and contemporary photographic goods, my hope is that the studio becomes a space where people can slow down, connect with the craft, and experience photography as both art and community."

- AJ O'Reilly, owner of Griffy's Art Supply, a User Experience Designer, and visual artist, will develop both his professional and creative practice.

"As a User Experience Designer, I need to sketch, cut paper, and build prototypes for my

Noblesville, Westfield Partner for Inclusive Walk

The Westfield Mayor's Council on Disabilities and the Noblesville Advisory Council on Disabilities have partnered to host the inaugural Sensory Nature Walk on Saturday, Oct. 4, from 9 to 11 a.m. along the Midland Trace Trail.

"I'm proud that the Noblesville and Westfield Councils on Disabilities are partnering for a sensory walk that offers an opportunity to all residents to enjoy nature and be a part of a fun fall activity that is inclusive to all," Noblesville Mayor Chris Jensen said. "I look forward to joining Mayor Willis and all the participants for a walk on the Midland Trace Trail and continuing collaborations that showcase accessibility in our communities."

Parking, sensory friendly activities, resource booths, and complimentary refreshments will be located at Hazel Dell Elementary (3025 Westfield Road, Noblesville), where the walk will commence.

"Ensuring residents feel seen, heard, and respected is a value Westfield and Noblesville share, which makes this collaboration a natural fit," said Westfield Mayor Scott Willis. "I'm proud to partner with Mayor Jensen and our Noblesville neighbors on this inclusive walk, and I look forward to welcoming participants alongside him."

The sensory nature walk will be led by the Noblesville and Westfield Parks & Recreation Departments. There will be four interactive, sensory activities focusing on the senses during the walk. The Midland Trace Trail is ADA accessible, allowing individuals of all ages and abilities to participate. that never made it into the big county histories — you know, the kind of details that remind us our forebears were no different from us. Circumstances and settings change with time, but human nature NEVER does.

I can't let this anniversary pass without giving a shout-out to Jerry Snyder. You wouldn't be reading these words today if not for her.

When I offered to help Jerry with her Times column after vision problems left her barely able to see her computer screen, I never dreamed it would eventually lead to me writing a column of my own for the Times.

I learned a lot from Jerry and I've intentionally modeled this column after hers. She used to say she tried to write like she was talking to a neighbor over her back fence. I've made an effort to retain that same positive, conversational tone in my columns.

Somehow I've managed to keep chugging along all these years, even when The History Press/Arcadia Publishing recruited me to write "A Brief History of Noblesville." (Co-authored by Nancy Massey and available at local drugstores, Barnes and Noble, and Amazon, she added with a wink.)

I want to thank all the people who've provided information and/or ideas that helped to make my chugging possible.

Please, keep it up! I really don't want to have to pull my good luck charm out of mothballs.

Note: When I was at Gatewood's recently to pick up a couple of mums (they're gorgeous, by the way,) Kelli Balke reminded me that this year's Potter's Bridge Festival will be held "around the corner" from them on October 4. (11:00 a.m. to 5 p.m.)

I've never attended the festival, but Kelli highly recommends it. Maybe that's what I need to get into an autumn mood. With all the heat we've been having lately, no amount of pumpkin spice has been able to make me feel "fallish" yet.

work. It's not all just working with pixels on the computer," O'Reilly said. "I'm excited about having a space that will allow me to do my design work and collaborate with others when I can. As I continue to develop my studio practice and explore new creative avenues, having a physical space that aligns with my business's creative side is really valuable."

Andrew Bradford, founder of Bradford Consulting Group, will establish his firm's headquarters at Logan Street while supporting arts and culture initiatives.

"Bradford Consulting Group has chosen Noblesville, Indiana as the strategic location for our headquarters," Bradford said. "Our partnership at Logan Street Studios with Hamilton County's top arts organization provides our clients direct access to the region's creative sector and artistic talent. This positioning strengthens our long-term commitment to driving meaningful community impact and sets our business up for continued growth. The opportunity for collaboration and connection is strengthened by having a physical presence in the heart of Hamilton County."

In addition to these studios, Noblesville Creates will maintain office space for meetings and staff use, and may offer limited coworking opportunities in the future.

While the Logan Street location represents an exciting milestone, Noblesville Creates emphasizes that this is only one step toward meeting the community's growing demand for arts opportunities.

"As amazing as it is to celebrate this new space, it's not enough," said McGill. "To truly thrive, support local artists, and continue to serve the community, we need even more space to host programs, exhibitions, and collaborative projects. Our vision for the future includes additional facilities that can accommodate the expanding creative energy in Hamilton County."

Noblesville Creates is deeply grateful to Bret

Richardson, the landlord of the space, for his generosity and support in making the Logan Street location possible. Richardson has also donated photography equipment to help bring the studios to life.

"This partnership demonstrates the power of community and the importance of investing in the arts," said McGill. "We are thankful for Bret's generosity and commitment to supporting Noblesville's creative economy."

While the space will not function as a walk-in gallery like the Noblesville Creates on 8th location, it will host special events and artist showcases throughout the year, with more details to be shared soon. While the tenants may welcome visitors when they are in their studios, their schedules will vary. Bradford Consulting Group will maintain regular office hours for its clients.
